

Senators Saying 'No Thanks' To Job Of Probing McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders combed a list of about 20 senators today in the hunt for what they called a middle-of-the-road committee to investigate the conduct of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.). The GOP and Democrat chiefs were finding their task more than a little difficult. The fact that they had thinned down the list of 96 senators to 20 was prime evidence that there are few upper house members left who have not expressed themselves on the controversial issue of McCarthyism.

And of the 20, it was also evident the leaders may have trouble finding three from each party willing to handle a thorough investigation of the always-ready-for-a-fight senator from Wisconsin. There definitely were no volunteers.

High on the lists compiled by Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic chieftain, were reported to be the names of Senators Millikin (R-Colo.), George (D-Ga.), Russell (D-Ga.), and Byrd (D-Va.).

Knowland had called for the naming before the day is over of three Republicans and three Democrats to serve as a special group to sift 46 accusations offered as the basis for a move to censure McCarthy.

There were indications Knowland and Johnson were running into difficulties and delays in picking the new inquiry group as senator after senator whose name was mentioned ticked off objections to serving.

There was an obvious reluctance to undertake in Washington's summer heat a job most senator regarded as likely to be even hotter politically.

Knowland's GOP list apparently compiled largely from suggestions made by Republican Policy Committee members, was said to include Senators Payne (Me), Case (SD), Carlson (Kan), Jickenlooper (Iowa), Barrett (Wyo), Crippa (Wyo), Bennett (Utah), Thye (Minn) and Martin (Pa.).

Efforts were being made to prevail on Millikin, chairman of the Conference of all Republican Senators, to head the Republican trio. Millikin didn't voice a positive "no," but he told a newsman he had a "lot of other work to do in Washington and in Colorado."

Johnson was reported to have told George, Russell and Byrd he feels he must have one of the three of them among Democrats on the committee. All three said they didn't feel they could serve.

Also high on Johnson's list were said to be Senators Stennis (Miss), Hayden (Ariz), Daniel (Tex), Sparkman (Ala), Holland (Fla), Pastore (RI), and Edwin C. Johnson (Colo.).

Knowland and Lyndon Johnson pressed for speedy action so that the six-member committee could make an early inquiry and report back before scheduled mid-month adjournment of Congress.

The accusations stem mostly from McCarthy's Communist-hunting tactics, his financial operations and his criticisms of fellow senators and government officials.

Awaiting choice of what some senators referred to as the "jury," McCarthy said he believes his accusers should appear first before the special committee. After that, he said, he will be ready to reply.

Sen. George said the committee "should have closed hearings and reduce the charges to four or five of sufficient substance that they would be grounds for censure, if they were proved. Then it might be possible for the committee to dispose of a charge a day in hearings."

Chairman Ferguson (Mich) of the Senate GOP Policy Committee said he thinks the Senate committee itself by its 75-12 vote sending the McCarthy issue to the special committee should remain in Washington until it has a specific report on which to act.

U.S. To Fight If China Reds Hit Formosa

But American Leaders Going Slow On Signing Alliance With Chiang

WASHINGTON (AP)—If Communist China makes a major attack on the Nationalist island of Formosa, the United States will go to war. Nearly every top U. S. official willing to discuss American policy publicly or privately agrees on that, an Associated Press survey shows.

But the Eisenhower administration is not willing, at least for the time being, to make that pledge in a formal treaty with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of the Chinese Nationalists.

Almost no responsible authority American policy. It is too much of a diplomatic hot potato.

Yet it is a fact that the American leadership now gives evidence of being divided over a global scale over a policy issue which seems to be deeply involved in the problem of an alliance with Formosa.

The issue is this: Is the United States preparing for war in the view that it is inevitable, or is it directing all its efforts toward avoiding war, without losing honor, in the hope of success?

AT ONE EXTREME on this issue is South Korea's President Syngman Rhee, who has gone about this country on his current visit vigorously advocating combat to solve the problems of Asia, and particularly of divided Korea.

Rhee was rebuffed by President Eisenhower. Instead of the strong public statement he wanted, Rhee was persuaded to join Eisenhower in a general declaration of desire to unify Korea by peaceful means.

At the other extreme is India with its policy of neutrality, as between communism and the West, in the cold war.

India's position is important because of Prime Minister Nehru's influence in Asia, generally assumed here to be great, and of his capacity to influence British policy.

In trying to build a system of anti-Communist alliances in Asia, the United States has been following a course far removed from the extremes as typified by Rhee and Nehru. But these positions exert constant pressure on the American course.

Estranged Mate Kills Woman, 26

BELLAIRE (AP) — A 56-year-old father last night stood by helplessly while his daughter was slain by her estranged husband. The husband died a few hours later of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Dead were Sanford Seavers, 27-year-old electrician, and his wife, Irma Campbell Seavers, 26. She was shot in the head and neck with .38 caliber bullets. They had been married seven months. The tragedy occurred at the home of Mrs. Seaver's father, Clifford Campbell. She had moved there after separating from her husband.

Low Bid Opened

COLUMBUS (AP)—The construction firm of Morris and Chittin of Washington, C. H. at $102,816 today was the apparent low bidder for building a dormitory for children of intermediate ages at the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphans' home, Xenia.

HONORS he won at the show load down Eaton Eastern Venture, supreme champion of the Royal Agricultural society's annual show at Windsor, England. The bull is owned by O. S. Hellyer of Eaton Bishop, Hertfordshire. More than 3,000 overseas visitors, including many Americans, attended the show.

Red German Chief Accepts Dr. John

BERLIN (AP) — Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl told the East German Parliament today that West German security chief Otto John has been granted political asylum in the Soviet zone.

Dr. John disappeared into the East sector of Berlin July 20. The West German government has taken the official position that he was kidnapped, probably while drugged or lured into the Red zone.

The East German radio announced last night that Red state security police had rounded up a "large number" of persons it said had been spying for the West German and American "secret services." That broadcast did not mention John by name, but as head of the Bonn government's internal security service he knew the identities of hundreds of persons sending information from East Germany to the West.

The Soviets in previous broadcasts have claimed that John quit the West to work for German reunification.

SINCE JOHN disappeared, a man purporting to be him has broadcast three times from East Germany, saying he went to the East to work for German unity and because "too many Nazis" had returned to power in the West German government.

Grotewohl told parliament he was making his statement about John to "end all speculation and sensation mongering" about his disappearance.

He read what he said was an excerpt of a letter to him from the 44-year-old man:

"I wish to thank the German Democratic Republic and you personally for the asylum which you have granted me."

"I wish to assure you that I want to work for the unity of Germany and against the danger of war."

An official British source in Bonn today said British authorities told John off from their intelligence secrets about 10 months ago. The action, the source said, was "due to an increasing conviction on our part that John was unreliable."

Other Allied officials in Bonn disclosed today that John was involved in a bitter controversy with American and British intelligence officials before he disappeared.

John considered Nazi-like elements rather than Communists as the greatest danger to the young West German republic and concentrated his work on them, the officials said. He was a member of the anti-Nazi resistance movement during the war and a participant in the 1944 plot against Hitler's life.

Famous G-Man Quitting Service

CINCINNATI (AP)—Earl J. Connelley, who worked on some of the FBI's biggest kidnapping cases, has retired from the service after 34 years. He had been an assistant to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover since 1940.

In 1935, he led agents on a daylight raid of the Florida hideout of Kate (Ma) Barker and her son, Fred, who were sought for the kidnapping of a St. Paul banker. He also was in charge of the capture of eight German saboteurs at the last war.

Foreign Aid Cut Decried By President

Whittlers In Senate Lack Knowledge Of Kremlin, Ike Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today the foreign aid cut voted by the Senate is too deep and will hurt the United States badly. He also said it reflects some lack of comprehension as to what the people in the Kremlin are doing.

The President told a news conference that before the bill went to Congress the administration already had trimmed the program as much as it felt was justified.

The chief executive's statement came as Senate leaders faced the tough job of heading off additional multimillion-dollar cuts in the administration's foreign aid program.

They appealed to the Senate Appropriations Committee to save all possible of Eisenhower's request for $3½ billion of new funds for the global anti-Communist effort in the year which started July 1.

Chairman Bridges (R-NH) called the purse-string group into closed session to vote on actual amounts to recommend in the final money bill of the session.

EISENHOWER and Secretary of State Dulles received a setback yesterday when the Senate slashed another half billion from the separate foreign aid authorization bill. It set a ceiling $800 million less than the President asked, along with restrictions he did not ask.

And it created the unusual situation of authorizing less than the House already has voted to spend.

Authorization measures normally are passed to establish maximums before Congress appropriates the actual money. But this time the House went ahead and voted to appropriate $2,895,944,000 in new funds after fixing a limit of $3,368,000,000. This latter authorization bill is the one trimmed (Continued on Page Two)

Council Tables Ordinance On Late Night Eating Spots

In the first half of a twin-bill debate Tuesday night, city council voted to set aside an ordinance which would have forced the closing of eating places "and filling stations" during the early morning hours if they are located in residential districts.

The measure, up for final reading, was pushed, pulled, denounced and supported, before Councilman George Cristes asked that it be tabled until some future date. He said it should be rewritten.

Circleville Attorney Emmitt L. Crist, speaking for opponents of the ordinance, asked for and received assurance he would be notified if and when council decides to take up the proposal again. Crist led the attack on the ordinance, which he said was aimed primarily at a Southend restaurant.

The wrangle over the "restaurant ordinance" was the first big one for council Tuesday night. The second came when the lawmakers voted down a proposal to tighten the city's law against stray dogs.

SHORTLY AFTER the lawmakers began their formal deliberations they accepted a pair of petitions, listing approximately 1,200 names, in opposition to the proposed "restaurant hours."

Cristes opened the discussion by pointing out the measure sought to restrict the hours only of those places in residential districts, and that those elsewhere in the city would not be affected. Crist was then invited to speak first for the opposition.

The attorney declared the measure was drawn up with one particular restaurant in mind, and that it could not be considered valid because of several details. Among these, he pointed to the fact that the restaurant was at its present location before the district was covered by zoning regulations.

Crist also asserted the proposal was unconstitutional, and said it would certainly bring about a referendum if council passed it. He referred to the long petitions opposing the ordinance, and described how the restaurant is of great service to local plant workers during the night shifts.

About 85 per cent of those who signed the petition, Crist declared, are local people. Some of the remainder, he conceded, may be transients.

But he emphasized that Circleville needs at least one all-night restaurant. "Almost any town you go through has a place to eat at night," he said.

CRIST ALSO stressed that "a man has a right to conduct a legal business in any way he sees fit" (Continued on Page Two)

Red Cross Blood Meeting Called Off

Spokesmen for the Pickaway County Red Cross blood program revealed late Tuesday that a recent organizational meeting had to be called off because of poor attendance.

The session planned for last Monday, was intended to fill key posts and coordinate the various units for work over the next six months. However, only about a dozen persons attended, and leaders decided not to go through with the meeting.

A new date for a meeting will probably be announced after Larry Goeller, vice-chairman of the program, returns to the city next week.

President Lauds George Marshall

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, speaking of the McCarthy dispute in the Senate, came up with a ringing defense today of Gen. George C. Marshall when asked for comment on a statement by former Secretary of War Harry Woodring that Marshall would sell out his own grandmother for personal advantage.

Eisenhower said Marshall, who as army chief of staff was his superior during World War II, typifies all that we look for in an American patriot.

The statement recalled a similar one by Eisenhower's White House predecessor, former President Harry S. Truman, who once called Marshall "the greatest living American."

Eisenhower said Marshall's 50 years of service showed the highest type of patriotism. It is a sorry reward, the President said, his eyes flashing, for someone to say that Marshall is not a loyal and fine American or that he served his country only to further personal ambition.

The President said he knows no one who deserves this verdict less than Marshall.

The Woodring statement was made public earlier this week by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) during debate in the Senate over a motion to censure the Wisconsin senator.

McCarthy has been bitter in his attacks on Marshall, labeling the general, in effect, a traitor.

THE WOODRING statement, contained in a letter to a New York friend, was used by McCarthy in rebuttal to one of the 40-odd formal accusations filed against him.

As to the controversy in the Senate over whether McCarthy should be censured, Eisenhower said in reply to a question that of course that controversy will have an effect on Republican party unity. But he said he feels he should not try to evaluate the situation in advance of any decision by the Senate on what course to take.

The President added that anything which tends to divide the party concerns him and means he must take some steps with respect to the situation.

On other matters:

COMMUNIST CHINA — Eisenhower reiterated with great emphasis that he is opposed to admitting Red China to the United Nations under present conditions.

The President went on to say he is always ready to wait and see whether the sinner reforms and comes into the fold. He would be off his rocker, he added, if he attempted to say what conditions would be five years from now with respect to Red China and the U.N.

ATOMIC POOL — The President said he does not propose to be defeated on his plan for an international atomic energy pool for peaceful purposes merely because Soviet Russia has refused to go along with the idea. He said he still is trying to find a way to put the plan into effect without Russia and intends to keep on trying.

POLITICS — So far as he is concerned, the President said, the main issue of the fall congressional campaign will be simply this: Is the record of the Republican administration a good one?

Long Wrangle Resumed Over Roaming Pets

City May Require All Of Them To Be Inoculated

City Council for more than an hour Tuesday night staged another legislative rhabarbar over Circleville's stray dogs, and finally decided to wait and see if the public demands changes in the present law.

Only constructive new note to come out of the latest wrangle—a carry-over from council's previous meeting—was growing support for a proposal to make inoculation of all dogs compulsory. The idea was first advanced in the current controversy by Bob Adkins, during the council meeting of July 20.

Many of those present at Tuesday night's gathering said they favored such a law, but even this idea was quickly challenged as being difficult to enforce.

The latest hassle finally subsided, after several sharp exchanges, when Councilman George Cristes said:

"We're operating under the ordinance now, so let's leave it go until Fall—until we see if it doesn't work. Let's wait until we get some trouble out of this—until we get some complaints."

HIS REFERENCE was to the city's present law which—during the summer months—tightens restrictions on dogs found roaming in the city. However, these restrictions will be relaxed under the law on Oct. 1. And council has been studying a new measure which would extend the "Summer rules" to a full year basis.

The new ordinance, up for final reading, was finally defeated. If the public demands it, the lawmakers can be drawn later—to tighten the restrictions, and probably to include compulsory inoculation as a safeguard against any rabies outbreak.

Tuesday's argument, which sooner or later involved most of council and many of the 30-some spectators present, had been anticipated on the basis of a similar row staged at the July 20 session. The latest debate lived up to its advance billing.

As the new measure came up for decision, Councilman Ray Cook proposed an amendment. It was quite awhile before he succeeded in getting a vote on it as the discussion picked up vigor immediately.

Under Cook's proposed amendment, the owner of any dog found off the owner's premises and not on a leash would be subject to penalties in the ordinance. The amendment was finally rejected.

The measure around which the verbal storm whirled Tuesday night read in part as follows:

"THAT WHEREAS the problem of dogs running at large and destroying property of persons other than the owners of said dogs has become a nuisance, now therefore: 'Whoever being the owner of any dog, or whoever being in charge of any dog, who shall knowingly permit the same to run at large, shall be fined not more than $10.00 and not less than $5.00.' Furnace Explosion Injuries Fatal

ZANESVILLE (AP)—Neil Wilson, 47, one of six persons injured yesterday in an explosion at the nearby Philo plant of the Ohio Ferro Alloys Co., died today.

Wilson was a foreman and suffered severe burns. The blast blew the roof off one building and shattered windows. A plant spokesman said a mold exploded as a crew was pouring steel from a furnace into the mold. There was no estimate of damage.

Newest Army Revolt Quelled In Guatemala

GUATEMALA (P)—President Carlos Castillo Armas and Guatemala's regular army still governed their nation in shaky fashion today after surrender of holdout dissident troops at the Aurora base just outside the capital.

The defiant units, apparently hoping to force Castillo Armas out, had refused to honor the agreement Monday night pledging the army's full support to the governing junta in exchange for the disbanding of the President's "liberation army" of irregulars.

Castillo Armas announced the army units had surrendered last night after the President's honor guard blocked all roads to the base and threatened to attack. He said the base commander and his second in command had been imprisoned and the junta had put Col. Ramon Gonzales in command of the base.

Castillo Armas insisted army commanders loyal to the junta were in complete control of the country and "absolute calm" prevailed. But he made no move to countermand his order earlier yesterday halting dissolution of his irregular units in the key provincial cities of Zacapa and Chiquimula.

The 700 "liberationists" in Guatemala City were disarmed Monday night after they had battled for 12 hours with cadets of the national military academy and troops from the Aurora base.

Red Cross Blood Meeting Called Off

Spokesmen for the Pickaway County Red Cross blood program revealed late Tuesday that a recent organizational meeting had to be called off because of poor attendance.

The session planned for last Monday, was intended to fill key posts and coordinate the various units for work over the next six months. However, only about a dozen persons attended, and leaders decided not to go through with the meeting.

A new date for a meeting will probably be announced after Larry Goeller, vice-chairman of the program, returns to the city next week.

Famous G-Man Quitting Service

CINCINNATI (P)—Earl J. Connelley, who worked on some of the FBI's biggest kidnapping cases, has retired from the service after 34 years. He had been an assistant to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover since 1940.

In 1935, he led agents on a daylight raid of the Florida hideout of Kate (Ma) Barker and her son, Fred, who were sought for the kidnapping of a St. Paul banker. He also was in charge of the capture of eight German saboteurs at the last war.

Council Tables Ordinance On Late Night Eating Spots

In the first half of a twin-bill debate Tuesday night, city council voted to set aside an ordinance which would have forced the closing of eating places "and filling stations" during the early morning hours if they are located in residential districts.

The measure, up for final reading, was pushed, pulled, denounced and supported, before Councilman George Cristes asked that it be tabled until some future date. He said it should be rewritten.

Circleville Attorney Emmitt L. Crist, speaking for opponents of the ordinance, asked for and received assurance he would be notified if and when council decides to take up the proposal again. Crist led the attack on the ordinance, which he said was aimed primarily at a Southend restaurant.

The wrangle over the "restaurant ordinance" was the first big one for council Tuesday night. The second came when the lawmakers voted down a proposal to tighten the city's law against stray dogs.

SHORTLY AFTER the lawmakers began their formal deliberations they accepted a pair of petitions, listing approximately 1,200 names, in opposition to the proposed "restaurant hours."

Cristes opened the discussion by pointing out the measure sought to restrict the hours only of those places in residential districts, and that those elsewhere in the city would not be affected. Crist was then invited to speak first for the opposition.

The attorney declared the measure was drawn up with one particular restaurant in mind, and that it could not be considered valid because of several details. Among these, he pointed to the fact that the restaurant was at its present location before the district was covered by zoning regulations.

Crist also asserted the proposal was unconstitutional, and said it would certainly bring about a referendum if council passed it. He referred to the long petitions opposing the ordinance, and described how the restaurant is of great service to local plant workers during the night shifts.

About 85 per cent of those who signed the petition, Crist declared, are local people. Some of the remainder, he conceded, may be transients.

But he emphasized that Circleville needs at least one all-night restaurant. "Almost any town you go through has a place to eat at night," he said.

CRIST ALSO stressed that "a man has a right to conduct a legal business in any way he sees fit"

Water Use Booms

COLUMBUS (P)—All water consumption records in metropolitan Columbus were shattered last month. The July total was 2,006,580,000 gallons compared to the previous high of 1,949,810,000 in August 1953.

Long Wrangle Resumed Over Roaming Pets

City May Require All Of Them To Be Inoculated

City Council for more than an hour Tuesday night staged another legislative rhubarb over Circleville's stray dogs, and finally decided to wait and see if the public demands changes in the present law.

Only constructive new note to come out of the latest wrangle—a carry-over from council's previous meeting—was growing support for a proposal to make inoculation of all dogs compulsory. The idea was first advanced in the current controversy by Bob Adkins, during the council meeting of July 20.

Many of those present at Tuesday night's gathering said they favored such a law, but even this idea was quickly challenged as being difficult to enforce.

The latest hassle finally subsided, after several sharp exchanges, when Councilman George Cristes said:

"We're operating under the ordinance now, so let's leave it go until Fall—until we see if it doesn't work. Let's wait until we get some trouble out of this—until we get some complaints."

HIS REFERENCE was to the city's present law which—during the Summer months—tightens restrictions on dogs found roaming in the city. However, these restrictions will be relaxed under the law on Oct. 1. And council has been studying a new measure which would extend the "Summer rules" to a full year basis.

The new ordinance, up for final reading, was finally defeated. If the public demands it, the lawmakers were reminded, a new ordinance can be drawn later—to tighten the restrictions, and probably to include compulsory inoculation as a safeguard against any rabies outbreak.

Tuesday's argument, which sooner or later involved most of council and many of the 30-some spectators present, had been anticipated on the basis of a similar row staged at the July 20 session. The latest debate lived up to its advance billing.

As the new measure came up for decision, Councilman Ray Cook proposed an amendment. It was quite awhile before he succeeded in getting a vote on it as the discussion picked up vigor immediately.

Under Cook's proposed amendment, the owner of any dog found off the owner's premises and not on a leash would be subject to penalties in the ordinance. The amendment was finally rejected.

The measure around which the verbal storm whirled Tuesday night read in part as follows:

"THAT WHEREAS the problem of dogs running at large and destroying property of persons other than the owners of said dogs has become a nuisance, now therefore: "Whoever being the owner of any dog, or whoever being in charge of any dog, who shall knowingly per-

Hartman To Speak At Rotary Meeting

Details of the bond issue proposed to spark Circleville's school-building program will be discussed Thursday at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club.

Main speaker at the luncheon gathering will be Superintendent of City Schools George Hartman. He will discuss the importance of the bond issue, to be placed before the voters in November and also the present status of city school facilities.

Circleville board of education recently disclosed plans to place the bond issue on the November ballot.

Cincinnati Notes 20-Cent Robbery

CINCINNATI (P)—One of the smallest robberies in Cincinnati police history was put on the police blotter last night.

An 11-year-old girl robbed an 8-year-old girl of 20 cents. Two policemen gave chase and captured the boy and recovered 16 cents. Four pennies were dropped in the one-block chase.

Milk Pact OK'd

CINCINNATI (P)—Representatives of the AFL Milk Drivers' Union and the Milk Producers' Assn. today agreed to a new work contract. Driver-salesmen will receive an average weekly pay boost of $7, based on commissions. Plant workers will receive a $3 weekly increase. Base pay was $81.45 a week.

Furnace Explosion Injures Fatal

ZANESVILLE (P)—Neil Wilson, 47, one of six persons injured yesterday in an explosion at the nearby Philo plant of the Ohio Ferro Alloys Co., died today.

Wilson was a foreman and suffered severe burns.

The blast blew the roof off one building and shattered windows. A plant spokesman said a mold explosion as a crew was pouring steel from a furnace into the mold. There was no estimate of damage.

Kansas GOP Revolt Seen

Gov. Arn's Command Losing In Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—A revolt against the Republican Statehouse administration in Kansas took the spotlight from three U. S. senators and 41 house members seeking re-nomination in four state primaries yesterday.

While most of the incumbent Congress members won easily, Lt. Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas held a mounting lead in his challenge to the administration of retiring Gov. Edward F. Arn. Party control is at stake.

Hall, seeking the GOP nomination for governor, was trailed by George Templar, former U. S. district attorney, who had the support of party leadership.

All incumbent congressmen won their races in Kansas, Missouri and West Virginia. And all but one of the six Michigan congressmen opposed for renomination held leads. Veteran Democrat George D. O'Brien trailed.

Sen. Matthew M. Neely (D-WVa) was renominated to a fifth term, topping the closes of his three opponents 4-1.

IN KANSAS, GOP Sen. Andrew F. Schoepel triumphed easily over two opponents, Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, was unopposed for renomination.

Among the successful congressmen was Rep. Dewey Short (R-Mo), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. He admitted his primary opponent, State Sen. Noel Cox, "gave me a little scare for a while." But Short won by a comfortable margin.

There was a four-way contest for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Michigan. The winner was Donald S. Leonard, former state police commissioner. He will oppose Gov. G. Mennen Williams in November.

Kansas GOP Revolt Seen

Gov. Arn's Command Losing In Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—A revolt against the Republican Statehouse administration in Kansas took the spotlight from three U. S. senators and 41 house members seeking re-nomination in four state primaries yesterday.

While most of the incumbent Congress members won easily, Lt. Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas held a mounting lead in his challenge to the administration of retiring Gov. Edward F. Arn. Party control is at stake.

Hall, seeking the GOP nomination for governor, was trailed by George Templar, former U. S. district attorney, who had the support of party leadership.

All incumbent congressmen won their races in Kansas, Missouri and West Virginia. And all but one of the Michigan congressmen opposed for renomination held leads. Veteran Democrat George D. O'Brien trailed.

Sen. Matthew M. Neely (D-WVa) was renominated to a fifth term, topping the closes of his three opponents 4-1.

IN KANSAS, GOP Sen. Andrew F. Schoepel triumphed easily over two opponents. Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, was unopposed for renomination.

Among the successful congressmen was Rep. Dewey Short (R-Mo.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. He admitted his primary opponent, State Sen. Noel Cox, "gave me a little scare for a while." But Short won by a comfortable margin.

There was a four-way contest for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Michigan. The winner was Donald S. Leonard, former state police commissioner. He will oppose Gov. G. Mennen Williams in November.

DAY OF HORSE AND BUGGY NOT YET COMPLETELY PAST

Here's a nifty number—complete with modern wire wheels.

By MARION SIMMS

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper.

IN A WORLD of jet speeds and motorized efficiency, one American manufacturing concern continues to flourish because it has remained geared to the horse-and-buggy era.

In fact, buggies are its business. The last factory in the United States building nothing but horse and pony drawn passenger vehicles, the Standard Vehicle company of Lawrenceburg, Ind., is doing as flourishing a business today as when the concern was started at Cincinnati in the early 1890s.

During the more than half a century since, buggies have been sold and shipped to every state, and many abroad. Carloads go, year after year, to Mexico.

The biggest bulk of the output, however, continues to go to Amish farming communities in America. Automobiles are forbidden to members of this austere religious sect, and they still depend for transportation on the same type of conveyance their forefathers used.

After a fire in 1918 destroyed the plant, Standard Vehicle moved to Lawrenceburg, where a second disaster struck. They were nearly wiped out in the 1937 flood.

As quickly as possible, they restored their facilities and shortly after the start of World War II were doing a peak business. The shortage of automobile tires, gas rationing, and numerous war restrictions caused Americans to turn in unprecedented numbers to the horse-drawn transportation of the pioneer days.

FOR TODAY'S purchasers of old-fashioned buggies—either as a practical means of transportation or as a recreational facility for themselves and their children—there are a variety of models to choose from. Take your choice: Bright red carts with steel axles for breaking horses . . . Jog carts with hickory shafts . . . Shiny black two-seaters with touches of green or other colors in Spanish leather or wool broadcloth . . .

One high-class show buggy has chrome-plated wire wheels and pneumatic tires, tubular bike axles, bent stick seat, and bull dog couplers. This, as well as many of the other buggies, can be built for either pony or horse.

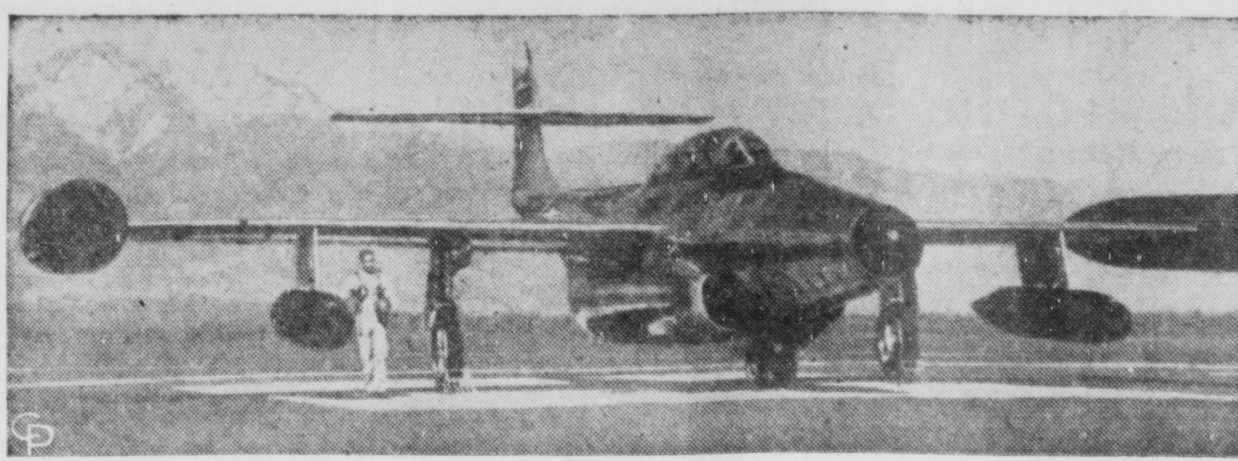

Others are the cob size run-about with panel seat, the road cart, the smart double-seater decorated with wicker. This last one is popular for large Shetland or Welsh ponies. The seats are so arranged that the passengers may sit either vis-a-vis or dos-a-dos. When finished with maroon leather, and the body lightly striped in red, it brings admiring glances even from motorists.

FOR SMALL-FRY there are pony carriages with rubber tires and oil-burning lamps, commodious enough for six children. They are designed with a cut-under feature that makes it safe for the young ones to do the actual driving. Another favorite is a two-pony express wagon that can be lettered in the side panels.

Several years ago, Standard Vehicle had a job on the unusual side: Repairing an old Wells Fargo Express stagecoach. Owned by a man in New Mexico, he shipped his prize antique east by truck for restoration.

Painstaking care by craftsmen gave new life and beauty to the old vehicle. When it was completed, down to the last fine line of lettering, the workmen stood back and watched it being hauled onto a truck for its return to the desertland.

"Hmmmmp," growled one old-timer as the sturdy relic was padded and pampered into its traveling compartment. "She could make it easy on her own four wheels!"

MORE RANGE is added to USAF's Northrop Scorpion F-89D with these new jettisonable pylon fuel tanks slung on lower wing surfaces. The tanks are nearly 15 feet long, weigh more than two tons full, but do not appreciably affect speed of the all-weather interceptors. When empty, the tanks can be ejected by cartridge. Mrs. Spike Jones Dislikes Staying Home All The Time

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Womens Editor

Just staying home all day doesn't automatically make a woman a good mother, says Helen Grayco, wife of the professionally zany Spike Jones and mother of Spike Jr., 5, and Leslie Ann, 3.

Helen, a decorative and delicate type, accompanies her orchestra-leader husband on all his strenuous one-night - stand tours, does her part in his TV shows, runs a large home in Beverly Hills, cooks the Italian dishes Spike loves, designs her own wardrobe and is a highly successful mother.

In her spare time, say between 2 and 4 a. m. some mornings, Mrs. Jones plans the menu for the next family reunion, at which her 10 brothers and sisters and their assorted offspring gather with their parents at the hospitable Jones homestead. Says Helen:

"We usually have these family reunions at our house on Christmas and the Fourth of July. There are 55 in the immediate family, counting 26 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren. My parents stay with us, and all my brothers and sisters and their families live nearby."

Helen and Spike take Spike Jr., and Leslie Ann along on all their trips except the one-night stands. Then when they are doing a Hollywood TV show, they sometimes stay at home in Beverly Hills for a couple of months, spending all possible time with the small fry.

"I guess we spend more time and thought on the children than if I had nothing to do but stay home and take care of them," says Helen. "At any rate, I'm sure they're perfectly happy and well-adjusted, and I'm sure they haven't missed any love or companionship from us."

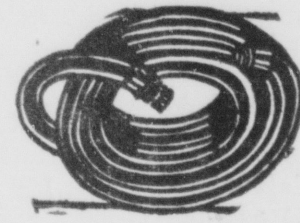

Helen sings with Spike's band, laughs at his antics and acts as

"Spike always tries them out on me first," says Helen, "to see if they're funny. Sometimes he thinks my sense of humor is inadequate. Like the time he put a rubber octopus in our swimming pool."

The Joneses believe in old-fashioned discipline for their children, and refuse to spoil them even when it's hard not to humor their requests. Says Mama Jones:

"I have no patience with all this business about letting kids express themselves by smashing up the living room or punching a playmate. In my experience, no book of child psychology is equal to a good old-fashioned spanking for quick results."

3 'Dan'l Boones' Riddle Automobile

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Three "Dan'l Boones" couldn't find a b'ar to test their marksmanship on yesterday.

So they riddled Frank Jagsarszewski's automobile with nine .45-caliber automatic slugs and 10 from a .22-caliber rifle, peppering the right tires, rear glass and right side.

He said he noticed three men shooting at a nearby tree when he parked to go fishing in the Ohio River. He returned to find his car shot up and the men gone.

INDIANS TO STAGE BIGGEST POWWOW IN OVER CENTURY

Crow Indian chiefs parade down a Sheridan, Wyo., street.

By ELLIS LUCIA

Central Press Correspondent

SHERIDAN, Wyo.—Age-old enemies who haven't fraternized with each other in a century will gather in Sheridan, Wyo. early in August for the biggest powwow since the Medicine Lodge treaty of the 1850s.

Four thousand red men from 31 tribes throughout the United States will resurrect ancient tribal rites and ceremonies dating back hundreds of years. Some rites are so old few living whites have ever witnessed them, and neither have the younger Indians.

The mass powwow and festival will be a nationwide Indian tribute to the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children, where many an Indian child has been treated. Kalif Temple of the Shrine in Sheridan is organizing the event, scheduled for Aug. 7 and 8.

Already colorful feathered war bonnets and porcupine embroidered shirts 100 years old are being taken from storage to make ready for the big parade, a highlight of the powwow. Over 1,000 Indians will be on parade, wearing attire worth many thousands of dollars.

PERHAPS making their last public appearance will be warriors who roamed the plains in buffalo days. Many of them are in their 90s. Expected to attend will be Roan Bear, a Sioux who was on hand when Sitting Bull was arrested and killed; Spotted Bear and Dewey Beard, warriors who fought against Gen. George A. Custer at Little Bighorn; Yellow Robe, a scout for Gen. Nelson A. Miles and present at the surrender of Chief Joseph at Bear Paw in 1876.

Selection of a "Miss Indian America" will be another feature of the festivities. Over 75 pretty Indian maidens from 14 states and Canada are entered.

The winner will go to Atlantic City as a special guest for the "Miss America" pageant in September. Present "Miss Indian America" is Arlene Josephine Wesley of the Yakima tribe, Toppenish, Wash.

INDIAN ARTS and crafts, dress and implements will be exhibited in what is believed the largest exposition of this kind ever held. They will be shown the public in an exhibit hall at the Sheridan rodeo grounds.

Arlene Wesley
"Miss Indian America"

Monte Blue, movie, radio and television celebrity, himself a Cherokee, will act as the master of ceremonies.

The Indians are coming to Sheridan voluntarily not only to show appreciation to the Shrine hospitals, but to the city itself. Sheridan has been a national pace-setter for abolition of racial differences.

In 1953 Sheridan was given three national awards: the Silver Anvil of the American Public Relations association; the Sacagawea from the American Indians, Inc.; and the George Washington medal of the Freedoms foundation, for outstanding achievement in building better understanding between the Indians and whites.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche has announced the arrest in Canton of a ring accused of producing a lewd film shown throughout Ohio.

The governor said Stark County Prosecutor John Rossetti acted in cooperation with state liquor agents who viewed the film at a Canton stag party. The governor said a deputy sheriff who accompanied the agents refused to interfere with the showing.

Gov. Lausche termed it the first instance in which a ring producing and showing lewd films ever had been apprehended in the state.

Special Child Care Setup Allowed In New Tax Plan

Editor's Note: Following is another in a series of articles explaining the big new federal income tax program and what it will do for (and to) you.

By CHARLES F. BARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP)—An entirely new idea is being imbedded in tax laws: a special break for people who have to pay for care of their children while they work.

This concept goes into effect for the first time in the huge, 1,000-page tax revision bill just passed by Congress.

Experts figure it will cut taxes for about 2,100,000 persons by a total of 130 million dollars a year.

The new bill permits many taxpayers to deduct from their income, before figuring their tax, actual expenses of up to $500 a year for care of children, but also for any dependent who is mentally or physically incapable of caring for himself.

That means an actual tax cut of $120 for those in the lowest, 20 per cent tax bracket, a bigger saving in higher brackets.

This is how you can qualify under the child-care provision:

If you file your return as a single head of a household—a widow, widower, divorced or separated person—you can claim the $500 deduction regardless of your income if you meet the other conditions.

And if you are a working wife, you can still qualify if your husband is incapacitated.

You also can benefit if you file as a married couple, where both husband and wife work and file a joint return. If your combined income is $4,500 or below, you can deduct the full $500. Your deduction is reduced by the amount of your income above $4,500.

Thus, if your income is $4,800, you can deduct only $300. But if your income is $5,100 or more, you are not entitled to any deduction.

One very important point to remember—if you claim this deduc-tion, you must itemize your dependent-care expenses and all your other deductions. You can benefit from this provision if you take the standard, automatic deduction of 10 per cent of your income offered to most taxpayers.

The provision applies to expenses in this calendar year, which started Jan. 1. You can deduct them in your income tax return due next April 15.

So if you qualify, you might want to start now keeping a record of your deductible expenses.

You can't deduct child-care expenses if they are paid to your own dependents. And of course you can't deduct baby-sitter expenses while you are out frolicking.

The theory is to permit a deduction for expenses you must incur to make a living—just as regular business expenses are deductible.

Diamond-shaped biscuits are pretty and quicker to cut than traditional round biscuits. Just square the edges of the biscuit dough when rolling out, then cut diagonally with knife to make the "diamonds."

A Tribute To Our Civic Workers

To Our Civic Workers

This community is blessed with a suitable share of useful civic workers. These are the people who can be called upon to serve where and when needed. They are the men and women who head up our civic and service groups, who work on public-service committees, and who, when the occasion demands it, will help to "pass the hat" for necessary community and benevolent activities. At the same time, they dig deep into their own resources to help the cause.

There is no other group more deserving of having a good word said in their behalf. One reason for this is that so few people bother to do so. It is more customary to criticize than to praise the people who "carry the ball" in the civic life of any community. The less one does on his own, the more he is likely to complain about what others are trying to do.

We are grateful that Circleville has had and does have so many citizens who are willing to sacrifice their time, money and personal convenience in behalf of the common good. We thank them for their help in making this a better community in which to live, and in which to conduct our business.

INDIANS TO STAGE BIGGEST POWWOW IN OVER CENTURY

Crow Indian chiefs parade down a Sheridan, Wyo., street.

By ELLIS LUCIA

Central Press Correspondent

SHERIDAN, Wyo.—Age-old enemies who haven't fraternized with each other in a century will gather in Sheridan, Wyo. early in August for the biggest powwow since the Medicine Lodge treaty of the 1850s.

Four thousand red men from 31 tribes throughout the United States will resurrect ancient tribal rites and ceremonies dating back hundreds of years. Some rites are so old few living whites have ever witnessed them, and neither have the younger Indians.

The mass powwow and festival will be a nationwide Indian tribute to the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children, where many an Indian child has been treated. Kalf Temple of the Shrine in Sheridan is organizing the event, scheduled for Aug. 7 and 8.

Already colorful feathered war bonnets and porcupine embroidered war shirts 100 years old are being taken from storage to make ready for the big parade, a highlight of the powwow. Over 1,000 Indians will be on parade, wearing attire worth many thousands of dollars.

PERHAPS making their last public appearance will be warriors who roamed the plains in buffalo days. Many of them are in their 90s. Expected to attend will be Roan Bear, a Sioux who was on hand when Sitting Bull was arrested and killed; Spotted Bear and Dewey Beard, warriors who fought against Gen. George A. Custer at Little Bighorn; Yellow Robe, a scout for Gen. Nelson A. Miles and present at the surrender of Chief Joseph at Bear Paw in 1876.

Selection of a "Miss Indian America" will be another feature of the festivities. Over 75 pretty Indian maidens from 14 states and Canada are entered.

The winner will go to Atlantic City as a special guest for the "Miss America" pageant in September. Present "Miss Indian America" is Arlene Josephine Wesley of the Yakima tribe, Toppenish, Wash.

INDIAN ARTS and crafts, dress and implements will be exhibited in what is believed the largest exposition of this kind ever held. They will be shown the public in an exhibit hall at the Sheridan rodeo grounds.

Arlene Wesley
"Miss Indian America"

Monte Blue, movie, radio and television celebrity, himself a Cherokee, will act as the master of ceremonies.

The Indians are coming to Sheridan voluntarily not only to show appreciation to the Shrine hospitals, but to the city itself. Sheridan has been a national pace-setter for abolition of racial differences.

In 1933 Sheridan was given three national awards: the Silver Anvil of the American Public Relations association; the Sacagewa from the American Indians, Inc.; and the George Washington medal of the Freedoms foundation, for outstanding achievement in building better understanding between the Indians and whites.

WASHINGTON (AP)—On June 7 T. Coleman Andrews, U. S. commissioner of internal revenue, said his agency was looking into the financial affairs of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), and had been for months, and would wind up its investigation in 60 days.

The 60 days are almost up. Since Andrews made the public statement his men were checking on McCarthy's income tax returns in relation to his income, he will be asked to explain what the result is. Andrews may possibly refer questioners to Atty. Gen. Brownell as the appropriate person in government to give out the final word on any investigation of McCarthy.

It was Brownell who on Oct. 16, 1953, gave McCarthy a clean bill of health on questions of personal finances and possible election law violations but said the government was still investigating the Wisconsin Republican's income taxes.

A report issued by a Senate election subcommittee on Jan. 2, 1953, raised questions about McCarthy's financial affairs and other matters, but it made no recommendations. Since there has been no announcement yet on the results of the internal revenue agents' investigation of McCarthy, that makes three pieces of unfinished business hanging over his head. These are the other two:

1. The report of his own subcommittee which handled the McCarthy-Armey hearings earlier this year, with McCarthy stepping off the group temporarily. That report is expected to say what the committee members think of the conduct of Army officials and McCarthy and his staff in their relationship which brought on the hearings. There may be conflicting reports.

2. The new investigation—ordered by the Senate Monday night—into McCarthy's conduct and accusations, mostly old, made by fellow senators. A special six-man Senate committee will handle this one.

McCarthy would have won a clear-cut victory this week if the Senate—after listening to Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) and others demand that McCarthy be censured—had voted against censuring him.

Since that didn't happen, the next best victory McCarthy could have won would have been this: a vote by the Senate to shove aside the whole touchy question of censuring him.

That might have been done by a parliamentary device. But it might have been so obviously a device for not casting a showdown vote on censure, that it could have been taken as a victory for McCarthy. That didn't happen either.

Indians Cannot Seem To Adjust To American Standards Of Life

By HAL BOYLE

PINE RIDGE, S. D. (AP)—The vanishing Redskin is no longer vanishing, but the poor Indian is still having a tough time.

"Our population is increasing about three per cent a year," said Ben Reifel, superintendent of the Pine Ridge Reservation. It is the second most populous in America.

But a rising birth rate has only accelerated the Indians task of surviving a white man's world. Reifel, a former Army officer and Harvard graduate, is the son of a full-blooded Sioux mother and a German-American father. He feels the only possible solution of "the Indian problem is education."

"There is no other answer," he said crisply. "The Indian simply must adjust. He estimates that of the 30,000 Indians in South Dakota (there are 150,000 in the entire country) only 15,000 are integrated in the pattern of our civilization."

Some 11,111 Ogalala Sioux now crowd the reservation, and they are selling off their acres to white ranchers at a rate that in 12 to 15 years will leave them completely landless. "There are 1,700 families on the reservation now, and it will support only 600 families," said Reifel. "Only 200 families are gainfully employed full time. The rest have to be subsidized one way or another."

As the superintendent sees it, the biggest trouble in upgrading the Indian economically is his failure to put the same value on time and thrift as his white neighbors do. "With the Sioux, he said, 'right now is important, not tomorrow. Time has no economic value.'"

Instead, the Senate in an overwhelming 75-12 vote left it up to a special committee to conduct hearings and then recommend to the full Senate whether McCarthy should be censured. Since this committee will be evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans, there's an excellent chance they'll look at McCarthy from opposite sides of the political fence and return a split verdict that winds up nowhere.

While McCarthy may not lose in these new hearings, he may not emerge a big winner either. A group of senators will testify against him. They didn't get mixed up in this fight with him to use featherdusters. It will probably be a rough fight, lasting for weeks, perhaps months. And the longer it takes, the longer McCarthy will have to stay away from his Communist investigations which brought him fame and headlines.

concern to them, and they have no interest in saving.

"This is because in the old days the buffalo provided them with everything—food, shelter, clothing and bone utensils. They had no way of storing food, and since they followed the buffalo they had no reason for building up material possessions."

"They lived each day as it came, but they can never become assimilated in our cultures until they develop a consciousness of time."

Another difficulty in uplifting the Indians' standards lies in the fact that women of marriageable age far outnumber the men on the reservation.

"This is tremendously important," said Reifel, who wishes the situation could be reversed, "because ordinarily women raise the moral level in any civilization."

Because of the shortage of husbands, about 25 per cent of the children born on the reservation are illegitimate. No stigma is attached to them among the tribe, but the high rate of illegitimacy adds to the problem of creating stable family patterns.

While most Indians agree with Reifel that education and acceptance of the white man's goals in life are the only way they can hope to lift themselves from abysmal poverty, many feel the federal government has not done enough to help them.

"Long before Columbus came, the Indian was a soaring golden eagle," one elderly tribesman said.

"But the white man envied the golden eagle his freedom and coaxed him down from the clouds and trapped him. He told the Indian that a golden eagle was nice, but he would be better off if he were a great white eagle."

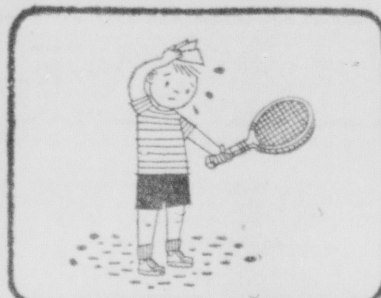

"The white man said he would help the Indian become a white eagle and started pulling out his tail feathers and his wing feathers. But when he pulled out a golden feather he didn't replace it with a white feather."

"Now the white man has tired of his game and says, you are a white eagle—why don't you fly? But the Indian is no longer an eagle at all. He has no feathers left, and he can't get off the ground."

Andrews may possibly refer questions to Atty. Gen. Brownell as the appropriate person in government to give out the final word on any investigation of McCarthy.

It was Brownell who on Oct. 16, 1953, gave McCarthy a clean bill of health on questions of personal finances and possible election law violations but said the government was still investigating the Wisconsin Republican's income taxes.

A report issued by a Senate election subcommittee on Jan. 2, 1953, raised questions about McCarthy's financial affairs and other matters, but it made no recommendations.

Since there has been no announcement yet on the results of the internal revenue agents' investigation of McCarthy, that makes three pieces of unfinished business hanging over his head. These are the other two:

1. The report of his own subcommittee which handled the McCarthy-Army hearings earlier this year, with McCarthy stepping off the group temporarily. That report is expected to say what the committee members think of the conduct of Army officials and McCarthy and his staff in their relationship which brought on the hearings. There may be conflicting reports.

2. The new investigation—ordered by the Senate Monday night—into McCarthy's conduct and accusations, mostly old, made by fellow senators. A special six-man Senate committee will handle this one.

McCarthy would have won a clear-cut victory this week if the Senate—after listening to Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) and others demand that McCarthy be censured—had voted against censuring him.

Since that didn't happen, the next best victory McCarthy could have won would have been this: a vote by the Senate to shove aside the whole touchy question of censuring him.

That might have been done by a parliamentary device. But it might have been so obviously a device for not casting a showdown vote on censure, that it could have been taken as a victory for McCarthy. That didn't happen either.

Indians Cannot Seem To Adjust To American Standards Of Life

By HAL BOYLE

PINE RIDGE, S. D. (AP)—The vanishing Redskin is no longer vanishing, but the poor Indian is still having a tough time.

"Our population is increasing about three per cent a year, said Ben Reifel, superintendent of the Pine Ridge Reservation. It is the second most populous in America.

But a rising birth rate has only accelerated the Indians task of surviving a white mans world.

Reifel, a former Army officer and Harvard graduate, is the son of a full-blooded Sioux mother and a German-American father. He feels the only possible solution of "the Indian problem is education.

"There is no other answer," he said crisply. "The Indian simply must adjust.

He estimates that of the 30,000 Indians in South Dakota (there are 150,000 in the entire country) only 15,000 are integrated in the pattern of our civilization.

Some 11,111 Ogalala Sioux now crowd the reservation, and they are selling off their acres to white ranchers at a rate that in 12 to 15 years will leave them completely landless.

"There are 1,700 families on the reservation now, and it will support only 600 families, said Reifel. "Only 200 families are gainfully employed full time. The rest have to be subsidized one way or another.

As the superintendent sees it, the biggest trouble in upgrading the Indian economically is his failure to put the same value on time and thrift as his white neighbors do.

"With the Sioux, he said, "right now is important, not tomorrow. Time has no economic value.

Instead, the Senate in an overwhelming 75-12 vote left it up to a special committee to conduct hearings and then recommend to the full Senate whether McCarthy should be censured.

Since this committee will be evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans, there's an excellent chance they'll look at McCarthy from opposite sides of the political fence, and return a split verdict that winds up nowhere.

While McCarthy may not lose in these new hearings, he may not emerge a big winner either. A group of senators will testify against him. They didn't get mixed up in this fight with him to use featherdusters.

It will probably be a rough fight, lasting for weeks, perhaps months. And the longer it takes, the longer McCarthy will have to stay away from his Communist investigations which brought him fame and headlines.

concern to them, and they have no interest in saving.

"This is because in the old days the buffalo provided them with everything—food, shelter, clothing and bone utensils. They had no way of storing food, and since they followed the buffalo they had no reason for building up material possessions.

"They lived each day as it came, but they can never become assimilated in our cultures until they develop a consciousness of time."

Another difficulty in uplifting the Indians' standards lies in the fact that women of marriageable age far outnumber the men on the reservation.

"This is tremendously important," said Reifel, who wishes the situation could be reversed, "because ordinarily women raise the moral level in any civilization."

Because of the shortage of husbands, about 25 per cent of the children born on the reservation are illegitimate. No stigma is attached to them among the tribe, but the high rate of illegitimacy adds to the problem of creating stable family patterns.

While most Indians agree with Reifel that education and acceptance of the white man's goals in life are the only way they can hope to lift themselves from abysmal poverty, many feel the federal government has not done enough to help them.

"Long before Columbus came, the Indian was a soaring golden eagle," one elderly tribesman said.

"But the white man envied the golden eagle his freedom and coaxed him down from the clouds and trapped him. He told the Indian that a golden eagle was nice, but he would be better off if he were a great white eagle.

"The white man said he would help the Indian become a white eagle and started pulling out his tail feathers and his wing feathers. But when he pulled out a golden feather he didn't replace it with a white feather.

"Now the white man has tired of his game and says, you are a white eagle—why don't you fly? But the Indian is no longer an eagle at all. He has no feathers left, and he can't get off the ground."

Starling-Shooter Finds Battle Costly

BELLEVUE, Ohio (AP)—With nary a starling to show for his efforts, James Welch, a retired railroad conductor, paid a fine of $25 and costs of $6.80 before Judge J. Allen Vickery yesterday.

It seems Welch was trying to get the starlings out of the trees in front of his home. His efforts with a shotgun violated an ordinance about shooting in the city without a permit.

What aroused the local police was the fact his blast cut through a high tension wire. This fell on two distribution wires of the city's electrical system, and the whole town of 8,000 persons was blacked out Monday night for four hours.

'TAKE BACK YOUR GOLD'

THE STATE OF Indiana is continuing its policy of refusing to solicit or even accept financial aid from the federal government. The movement dates back to the early days of World War II, when the state refused to high-pressure the War Department to locate Army camps or war plants in Indianapolis or other cities. Instead they said these installations should be made elsewhere, to better serve the national defense, instead of bringing a "few dimes" to Indiana.

The city of Indianapolis was offered $2.5 million for slum clearance. The offer was turned down. Instead the project was undertaken with local financing, and is nearing completion. Government-financed housing projects have been scorned, the need met with local capital. The school lunch and other gimme projects likewise have been turned down.

Spokesmen for the anti-aid group take the position that all these needs can be met without government help, and at less cost. There is no point in sending tax money to Washington and having it returned in the form of gratuities, they insist. It all makes for government waste.

Economy in government must start at home. A large part of the high cost of federal government results from these various aid programs, the anti-aiders insist. Indiana is self-sufficient, and is setting an example which, if generally followed, would greatly reduce federal spending in the years ahead.

QUESTION OF EXISTENCE

WITH COMMUNISTS freed of Indochinese opposition, they can be depended upon to continue to step up their aggressiveness. They shot down a British passenger plane in the Far East, but British appeasers apparently saw no significance in this.

Obvious intent of the Communists is to intensify the West's loss of face in Asia. There is no way to regain face except by making the Communists look like losers. America made a good start by shooting down two attacking Chinese planes.

There is unofficial intimation out of Washington that the United States will not only maintain its present military strength in the Far East but will increase it. There is further intimation that there may be a battle for Formosa. President Syngman Rhee of South Korea was persistent in pleading his case for rescue from the encroaching Communists on his trip to Washington.

Chiang of Formosa and Rhee of South Korea are the only certain bastions of anti-Communist strength left in Asia. Only a show of determination and successful resistance to further Red penetration will get the Asian neutrals off the fence and turn

These Days

Politicians have long learned to use a phrase to stir the popular imagination. Such a phrase saves the people from the need for thinking. All they have to do is to repeat the phrase over and over again and then they believe that it is true. Theodore Roosevelt invented the phrase, "The Square Deal," which actually had no precise political meaning. The assumption was that most politicians, when playing the card game, poker, then as popular as bridge or canasta is in this generation, dealt the cards from the bottom as well as off the top of the deck, but that Teddy dealt straight.

Franklin D. Roosevelt improved upon his distant cousin's phrase and made it "The New Deal," a rather confused adventure in politics and economics, having to do with doing at every political moment what came naturally without regard to the future. It was a most successful phrase because it gave Roosevelt four winning elections.

Winston Churchill came back into the politics of Great Britain, when it seemed as though Hitler would win World War II, with the dramatic phrase, "Blood, Sweat and Tears"—which is all that he could offer his people. It electrified them into resistance to the enemy. It stirred them to an historic effort of the greatest magnitude. It was a wonder-working phrase.

Imagine my surprise when I came across a political poster of 1844, headed "Hurrah for Birney & Liberty!" Never having heard of Birney but being a collector of anything that comes my way, I got a photostat of the poster from Larry Johnson who sells groceries in Syracuse and runs an old-fashioned country store.

It would seem that back in 1839, the Abolitionists, organizing the Liberty Party, nominated James G. Birney for the Presidency, but he declined. In 1843, they repeated this nomination of James G. Birney who got 62,000 votes in the election of 1844 which was sufficient to upset the hopes of Henry Clay and resulted in the election to the Presidency of James K. Polk.

The Birney poster contains the following paragraph:

"Anti-Monopolists, come and lend your aid for the overthrow of a mountain monopoly, compared with which all the other monopolies in this land are but as the 'small dust of the balance.' A monopoly whose capital is Twelve Hundred Millions of Dollars, all invested in human muscles and bones and sinews; and which, in its results, not only extorts from its immediate victims their toil and sweat and tears and blood, but annually drains uncounted millions from the pockets of the free North, and renders American Republicanism a hissing and by-word on the lips of all the Despots of the Old World."

There is no reason to believe that Winston Churchill ever heard of James G. Birney or his poster and we must assume that Churchill invented, "Blood, Sweat and Tears" out of his own head, he being very good at that sort of thing.

news behind the news

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles by Ray Tucker from Egypt.

CAIRO—The United States has become extremely unpopular throughout the vast Arab world, which constitutes very weak frontlines against Communist aggression, militarily and economically, but which owns the land on which the Western Allies need army, air and navy bases. We also need their active support from a sentimental and historical viewpoint. We cannot afford to have them favor the Russians in resentment.

The Arab peoples, according to their spokesmen in this ancient capital of Islamic belief, like us, personally and collectively, American business men and news paper correspondents get along far better with the Arabians, from here through the Middle East and India, than do the representatives of any other nation.

But the officials and the people despise the U. S. foreign policy as conducted by both the Truman and Roosevelt Administrations. Though utterly anti-Communist, they are skeptical of our attachment to such hated "colonial and imperialistic" powers as Britain and France.

BACKING—On the ground that we cannot afford a break in the solidarity of the Anglo-French-American alliance in Europe and the Far East, Washington backed the British in the Iranian oil dispute and also London's now ended controversy with Egypt over future occupation of the great military and air base, 150 miles northeast of Cairo, which is regarded as essential to the protection of the Suez Canal against Russian invasion of the Middle East. We support also the unpopular French occupation of Tunisia and Morocco.

It is easy to sit in Washington and write about backward peoples' resentment of foreign occupation, colonialism and imperialism. They are only words, theoretical terms. It requires a visit to this section of the world, and talks with people from officials to hotel door dragomans, to realize the bitterness which we are building for ourselves.

To support Anglo-French foreign policies, for instance, we refused to market Iranian oil after that country confiscated British holdings. The great international petroleum organization clamped on a boycott at the request of the State Department under Truman, and Eisenhower continued it.

In backing the British in the Suez Canal and military base argument, the United States refused to sell arms to the new Nasser regime. So, Egypt bought from Spain, which is receiving American military assistance. Finally, we voted against the demand of the Tunisians and Moroccans that their grievances against France be discussed before the United Nations.

SYMBOL—Washington's siding with the Churchill government in the Suez Canal controversy appears to be small cause for hurting Egyptian and Arabian friendship toward us. But to the Egyptians, who are imbued with the same spirit of nationalism that is sweeping what Truman called "backward and undeveloped countries," it represented the last symbol of "imperialism and colonialism."

"How would you Americans like it," exploded a high official of the Nasser regime, just before the recent Anglo-Egyptian pact was signed, "if Canada insisted on occupying New England? How would you like it if Canada demanded that it be permitted to maintain a military base on Governors Island in New York Harbor, or at Fort Dix in New Jersey? We are just as proud of our nation as you are. We have the same longing for complete and independent recognition."

"The British point out that they have given you Americans many bases in England and in their possessions around the world. But that is quite different. They gave or leased them to you under a contract and friendly agreement—in fact, for their own national interest. But they have been on Egyptian soil through the strain of conquest."

Washington's policy on "colonialism," under Truman and Eisenhower, has been to force Iran, Egypt, Indochina, Tunisia and Morocco to make concessions to their imperial masters. The time may have come for Ike and Dulles to demand that the great powers—our allies—give more consideration to the little but lusty peoples of the world.

Treating Motion Sickness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DEAFNESS in the inner ear serves as a rather drastic cure for motion sickness. People with such deafness in both ears are almost never subject to motion sickness or seasickness. The vestibular or balance mechanism of the inner ear is destroyed in most cases of inner ear deafness, thus doing away with seasickness.

Motion sickness need not come only from riding in a boat. It may come from riding in a car, airplane, or any other type of vehicle.

They Get Dizzy

People who suffer from this disturbance usually get dizzy, have a full, terrible feeling just below the angle of their ribs in the stomach, and may vomit. The room seems to spin around them and they lose their equilibrium or balance.

Today, the person who suffers from motion sickness can obtain remedies that may help him overcome his difficulty. Many drugs are now available.

One of the drugs that has been used for some time now is called Dramamine.

A New Drug

An entirely new substance, known as bonamine, was recently devised. It is a drug that is effective for twenty-four hours at a time.

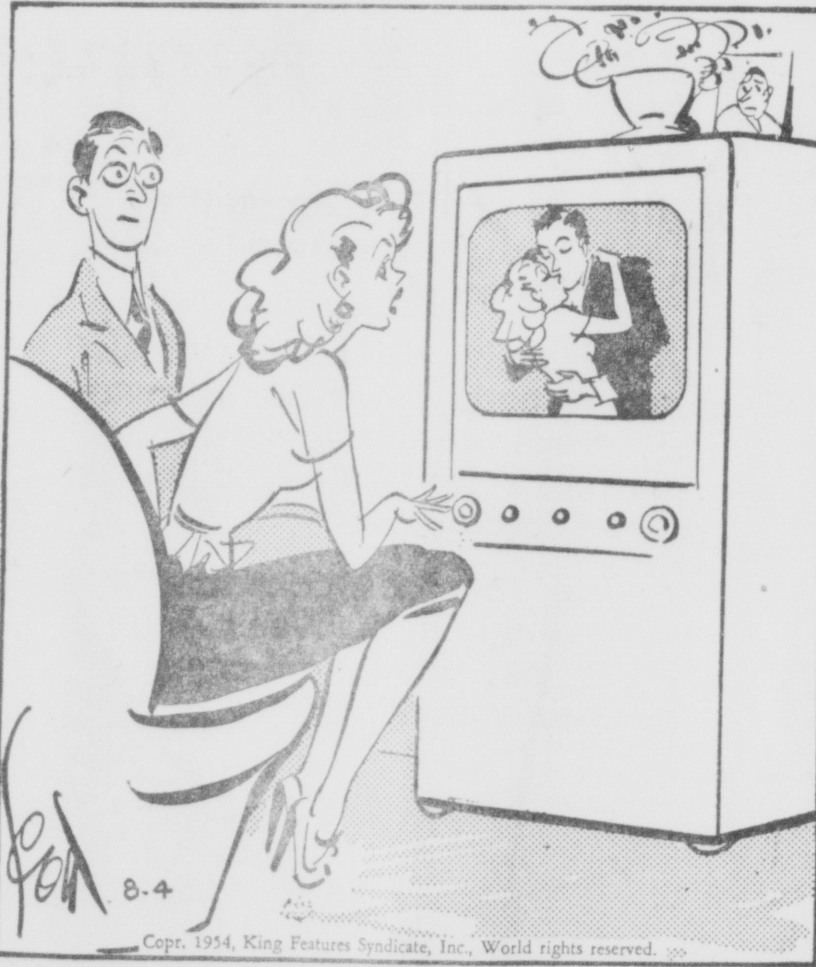

However, all of these drugs should be used only under the careful directions of a physician.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

E. A.: Is it true that there are certain gopher areas in the United States?

Answer: There are certain districts in the United States where the water does not contain sufficient amounts of iodine and therefore goiters are more prevalent. In order to counteract this, small amounts of iodine should be included in the daily diet, by means of iodized salt.

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

SYNOPSIS
When Charles Alexander Stewart absconded with funds from a bank in Philadelphia, he placed Carney Wilde's sleuthing career in jeopardy. Wilde was responsible for the security of the bank. It was up to him, now, to find the thief who had disappeared after killing a policeman in the course of his flight.

CHAPTER TWO

GRODNIK pulled his big feet back under his chair and frowned at me. His hands moved to the chair arms as if he meant to rise. "I had an idea," he said softly, hard eyes denying the gentleness of his voice. "But I guess maybe you're too smart to listen."

I shook my head. "I wasn't listening, smart captain," I said honestly. "It was a question. How do I get it?"

For a brief moment Grodnik glared at me, his eyes not under the thick brows. Then he drew a deep, slow breath and sat back heavily in the chair. He rubbed a wide hand across his forehead. He took out his cigar and forced a thin smile.

"We've been working on this," he said. He rose and rummaged in a pocket of his topcoat. "In a way," he said, "I guess you got a break coming to you, even if we didn't figure it was something we wouldn't follow up ourselves. When you knocked over that incinerator, you spilled all the trash and that's how we happened to find this."

He handed me a partially burned strip of paper. It had been mounted on stiff cardboard and covered with a pliotin jacket.

Grodnik said, taking his chair again: "I showed it to the superintendent. Nobody else knows about it."

The strip of paper was a deep blue. At the top was a solid white triangle and along its upper angles were the words, "Delta Line." Beneath the triangle were the words, "Passenger accommodation." Then came a white space with ruled lines, where details were to be written by passenger agents. Most of that had been burned away, but the top line, scrawled in blue ink, said, "Del Bdr."

I read it all carefully, knowing Grodnik thought it was important. I could see no indication of a date, nor of the passenger's name.

"You check on it?" I asked.

"It was sent last November by mail to a man named Holloway at the address where we found it," Grodnik said. "There hasn't been anyone living in that house since last summer, but it belonged to Stewart." He pointed at the strip of paper. "This Delta Line outfit is a freighting company. They own one passenger boat. It's kept pretty busy in the summer, but the big profit comes when the boat makes a winter cruise from Cincinnati, Ohio, to New Orleans, getting down there in time for Mardi Gras. This scrap of paper is a piece of the envelope used to send a ticket to a man named Holloway. He reserved a de luxe bedroom for one passenger. For two people, a de luxe bedroom costs

$500 each. For one it's $750. This boat has just 10 de luxe bedrooms. Mr. Holloway reserved number five."

"Paid for how?"

"Two hundred-dollar deposit sent by postal money order, bought by a man who said his name was Holloway, same address."

"Why aren't you chasing Holloway?"

"Police departments don't send men on excursion trips. Not when we can just as easily fly a man to Cincinnati and check the passengers before the boat leaves."

"But if he gets on at a later stop?"

"We'll probably send a man to New Orleans, too," Grodnik said. "He could still get off earlier, couldn't he?"

Grodnik nodded. "That's what I told the boss. He read me a geography lesson. He could be right."

"What lesson?"

"New Orleans," Grodnik said. "From there you can get any place. Mexico, South America, Far East, Europe. It's a big seaport. And it's one of the ports that dope is smuggled through. That means a mob is operating there."

I said: "Stewart isn't the kind to know mobsters."

"You can't guess what he knows. This riverboat reservation was made three months or more ago. If Stewart made it, and I'm willing to bet he did, then he planned to snatch the dough and get clean away."

"But how do you know Stewart was—"

"I sat rapped at my door, then the knob turned. Grodnik frowned significantly at the pliotin holder in my hand. I just had time to slip it into my shirt pocket when the door was opened and Penn Maxwell poked his sandy head around the edge.

"Can I—"

"Come in," I said. "Come in and—"

My voice dwindled to nothing when the door opened wide enough for me to see who was standing behind Maxwell. Out of the corner of my eye I noticed Grodnik's cigar wobble uncertainly as his mouth opened. I pushed against the arm of the chair so that I could get to my feet.

"Meet the missus," Maxwell said with a proud bow, sweeping his arm widely toward the open door.

The long, lovely, blonde girl moved eagerly forward, her expression vibrant with happiness. Something of the cold winter air touched lightly at my hand as she swept toward me with an excited clatter of heels, her arms spread.

"On, Carney!" she cried. "I wanted to tell you first of all—"

The words broke off in embarrassed silence when she saw Grodnik. "Dad! I didn't know you—"

"I guess you didn't," Grodnik growled. "I just guess you didn't."

Mrs. Penn Maxwell, formerly Jane Grodnik, smothered the old people, a de luxe bedroom costs man's complaints with a quick, gay kiss.

"Now, don't scold. We were coming to tell you right after we saw Carney. But first we wanted—"

"I should think you would," Grodnik said with a nasty growl for Maxwell.

"I'm surprised, boy," I said, reaching toward Maxwell and making him come forward to take my hand. "And I'm mighty happy for you. Congratulations!"

The surprise was real. I hadn't known that Jane and Maxwell were even good friends. I glanced quickly at the tall, glowing girl. Ten minutes earlier, if anyone had asked me to name my best girl, I'd have picked Jane without any hesitation. Without thinking.

Jane swirled, almost wrapping me in the cold-scented fur. "Oh, that's nice, Carney. Please be happy for both of us." She kissed me lightly, the sort of kiss an old beau gets after a marriage, just a cut better than a casual peck.

"Can you come to a sort of reception tonight, Carney?" Maxwell asked tentatively. "Celebration. And you, too, captain, if—"

I got into the act before Grodnik could answer. The old man and I had been friends for a long time before I'd ever met his daughter. I didn't give him a chance to say anything.

"We'll be there, boy," I said quickly. "Wouldn't miss it. But you'll have to give us time to find a present for the bride. Where are you throwing the brawl?"

"At the Bellevue, Carney," he said. "Private room. Seven o'clock. Okay, Carney?"

"Fine. We'll be there," I said. "Couldn't think of a better way to celebrate getting out of this place."

Jane pecked at my cheek again, waved happily at Grodnik and pivoted through the door with a dancer's grace. Maxwell pulled the door closed after him, then stopped for a moment. His face would always be a boy's face, I thought.

"Thanks, boss," he said. I grinned, waved and watched him shut the door. I sat down then and looked at Grodnik.

The deep lines in his cheeks were white with strain as his mouth opened hard to restrain the hot anger inside him. I knew then he hadn't been told, hadn't even suspected. I thought suddenly of his wife, Mary, the rosy, round-faced woman who made her home a warm and comforting place. I hoped Jane had been sensible enough to tell her ahead of time.

"That little..." Grodnik's voice was full of hatred.

"Let it go," I said heavily. "He's the best kid I know."

"Him?" Grodnik snorted. "Why he—"

'TAKE BACK YOUR GOLD'

THE STATE OF Indiana is continuing its policy of refusing to solicit or even accept financial aid from the federal government. The movement dates back to the early days of World War II, when the state refused to high-pressure the War Department to locate Army camps or war plants in Indianapolis or other cities. Instead they said these installations should be made elsewhere, to better serve the national defense, instead of bringing a "few dimes" to Indiana.

The city of Indianapolis was offered $2.5 million for slum clearance. The offer was turned down. Instead the project was undertaken with local financing, and is nearing completion. Government-financed housing projects have been scorned, the need met with local capital. The school lunch and other gimme projects likewise have been turned down.

Spokesmen for the anti-aid group take the position that all these needs can be met without government help, and at less cost. There is no point in sending tax money to Washington and having it returned in the form of gratuities, they insist. It all makes for government waste.

Economy in government must start at home. A large part of the high cost of federal government results from these various aid programs, the anti-aiders insist. Indiana is self-sufficient, and is setting an example which, if generally followed, would greatly reduce federal spending in the years ahead.

QUESTION OF EXISTENCE

WITH COMMUNISTS freed of Indo-Chinese opposition, they can be depended upon to continue to step up their aggressiveness. They shot down a British passenger plane in the Far East, but British appeasers apparently saw no significance in this.

Obvious intent of the Communists is to intensify the West's loss of face in Asia. There is no way to regain face except by making the Communists look like losers. America made a good start by shooting down two attacking Chinese planes.

There is unofficial intimation out of Washington that the United States will not only maintain its present military strength in the Far East but will increase it. There is further intimation that there may be a battle for Formosa. President Syngman Rhee of South Korea was persistent in pleading his case for rescue from the encroaching Communists on his trip to Washington.

Chiang of Formosa and Rhee of South Korea are the only certain bastions of anti-Communist strength left in Asia. Only a show of determination and successful resistance to further Red penetration will get the Asian neutrals off the fence and turn

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Politicians have long learned to use a phrase to stir the popular imagination. Such a phrase saves the people from the need for thinking. All they have to do is to repeat the phrase over and over again and then they believe that it is true. Theodore Roosevelt invented the phrase, "The Square Deal," which actually had no precise political meaning. The assumption was that most politicians, when playing the card game, poker, then as popular as bridge or canasta is in this generation, dealt the cards from the bottom as well as off the top of the deck, but that Teddy dealt straight.

Franklin D. Roosevelt improved upon his distant cousin's phrase and made it "The New Deal," a rather confused adventure in politics and economics, having to do with doing at every political moment what came naturally without regard to the future. It was a most successful phrase because it gave Roosevelt four winning elections.

Winston Churchill came back into the politics of Great Britain, when it seemed as though Hitler would win World War II, with the dramatic phrase, "Blood, Sweat and Tears"—which is all that he could offer his people. It electrified them into resistance to the enemy. It stirred them to an historic effort of the greatest magnitude. It was a wonder-working phrase.

Imagine my surprise when I came across a political poster of 1844, headed "Hurrah for Birney & Liberty!" Never having heard of Birney but being a collector of anything that comes my way, I got a photostat of the poster from Larry Johnson who sells groceries in Syracuse and runs an old-fashioned country store.

It would seem that back in 1839, the Abolitionists, organizing the Liberty Party, nominated James G. Birney for the Presidency, but he declined. In 1843, they repeated this nomination of James G. Birney who got 62,000 votes in the election of 1844 which was sufficient to upset the hopes of Henry Clay and resulted in the election to the Presidency of James K. Polk.

The Birney poster contains the following paragraph:

"Anti-Monopolists, come and lend your aid for the overthrow of a mountain monopoly, compared with which all the other monopolies in this land are but as the 'small dust of the balance.' A monopoly whose capital is Twelve Hundred Millions of Dollars, all invested in human muscles and bones and sinews; and which, in its results, not only extorts from its immediate victims their toil and sweat and tears and blood, but annually drains uncounted millions from the pockets of the free North, and renders American Republicanism a hissing and by-word on the lips of all the Despots of the Old World."

There is no reason to believe that Winston Churchill ever heard of James G. Birney or his poster and we must assume that Churchill invented, "Blood, Sweat and Tears" out of his own head, he being very good at that sort of thing.

DIET AND HEALTH

Treating Motion Sickness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DEAFNESS in the inner ear serves as a rather drastic cure for motion sickness. People with such damage in both ears are almost never subject to motion sickness or seasickness. The vestibular or balance mechanism of the inner ear is destroyed in most cases of inner ear deafness, thus doing away with seasickness.

Motion sickness need not come only from riding in a boat. It may come from riding in a car, airplane, or any other type of vehicle.

They Get Dizzy

People who suffer from this disturbance usually get dizzy, have a full, terrible feeling just below the angle of their ribs in the stomach, and may vomit. The room seems to spin around them and they lose their equilibrium or balance.

Today, the person who suffers from motion sickness can obtain remedies that may help him overcome his difficulty. Many drugs are now available.

One of the drugs that has been used for some time now is called Dramamine.

A New Drug

An entirely new substance, known as bonamine, was recently devised. It is a drug that is effective for twenty-four hours at a time.

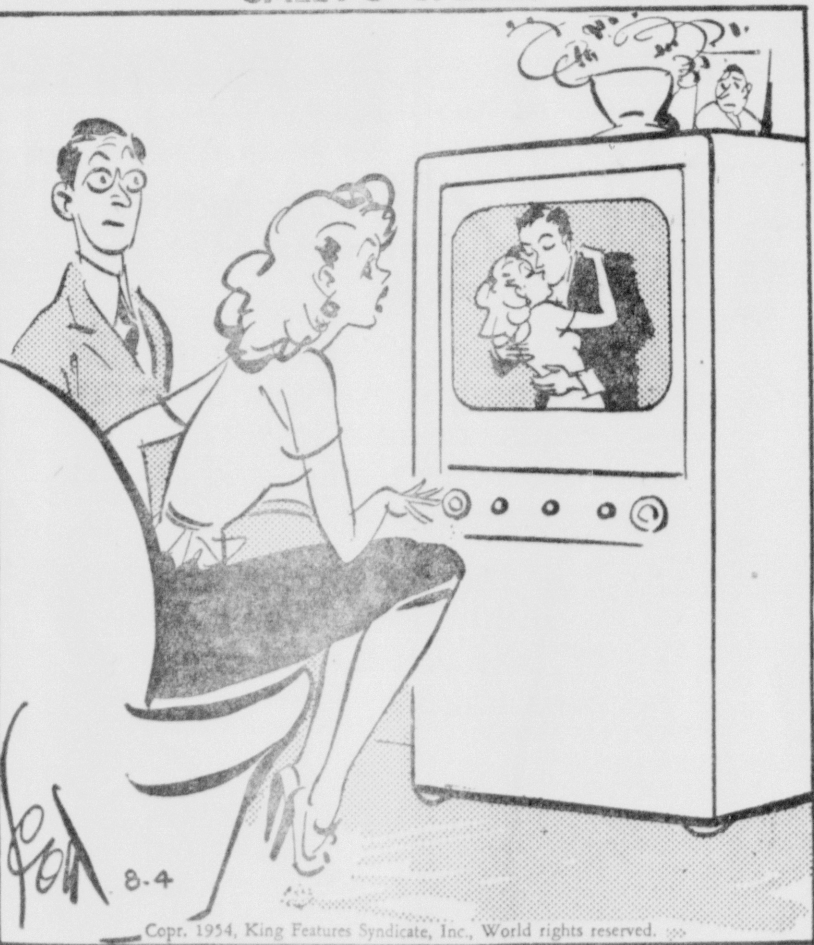

However, all of these drugs should be used only under the careful directions of a physician.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

E. A.: Is it true that there are certain goiter areas in the United States?

Answer: There are certain districts in the United States where the water does not contain sufficient amounts of iodine and therefore goiters are more prevalent. In order to counteract this, small amounts of iodine should be included in the daily diet, by means of iodized salt.

The Taming of Carney Wilde

Copyright, 1954, by Bart Spicer. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS
When Charles Alexander Stewart absconded with funds from a bank in Philadelphia, he placed Carney Wilde's sleuthing career in jeopardy. Wilde was responsible for the security policing of the bank. It was up to him, now, to find the thief who had disappeared after killing a policeman in the course of his flight.

CHAPTER TWO

GRODNIK pulled his big feet back under his chair and frowned at me. His hands moved to the chair arms as if he meant to rise. "I had an idea," he said softly, hard eyes denying the gentleness of his voice. "But I guess maybe you're too smart to listen."

I shook my head. "I wasn't being smart, captain," I said honestly. "It was a question. How do I get in it?"

For a brief moment Grodnik glared at me, his eyes hot under the thick brows. Then he drew a deep, slow breath and sat back heavily in the chair. He rubbed a wide hand across his forehead. He took out his cigar and forced a thin smile.

"We've been working on this," he said. He rose and rummaged in a pocket of his topcoat. "In a way," he said, "I guess you got a break coming to you, even if we didn't figure it was something we wouldn't follow up ourselves. When you knocked over that incinerator, you spilled all the trash and that's how we happened to find this."

He handed me a partially burned strip of paper. It had been mounted on stiff cardboard and covered with a phonofilm jacket.

Grodnik said, taking his chair again. "I showed it to the superintendent. Nobody else knows about it."

The strip of paper was a deep blue. At the top was a solid white triangle and along its upper angles were the words, "Delta Line." Beneath the triangle were the words, "Passenger accommodation." Then came a white space with ruled lines, where details were to be written by passenger agents. Most of that had been burned away, but the top line, scrawled in blue ink, said, "Del. Ldr."

I read it all carefully, knowing Grodnik thought it was important. I could see no indication of a date, nor of the passenger's name. "You check on it?" I asked.

"It was sent last November by mail to a man named Holloway at the address where we found it," Grodnik said. "There hasn't been anyone living in that house since last summer, but it belonged to Stewart."

He pointed at the strip of paper. "This Delta Line outfit is a freighting company. They own one passenger boat. It's kept pretty busy in the summer, but the big profit comes when the boat makes a winter cruise from Cincinnati, Ohio, to New Orleans, getting down there in time for Mardi Gras. This scrap of paper is a piece of the envelope used to send a ticket to a man named Holloway. He reserved a de luxe bedroom for one passenger. For two people, a de luxe bedroom costs

$500 each. For one it's $750. This boat has just 10 de luxe bedrooms. Mr. Holloway reserved number five."

"Paid for how?"

"Two hundred-dollar deposit sent by postal money order, bought by a man who said his name was Holloway, same address."

"Why aren't you chasing Holloway?"

"Police departments don't send men on excursion boats. Not when we can just as easily fly a man to Cincinnati and check the passengers before the boat leaves."

"But if he gets on at a later stop?"

"We'll probably send a man to New Orleans, too," Grodnik said.

"He could still get off earlier, couldn't he?"

Grodnik nodded. "That's what I told the boss. He read me a geography lesson. He could be right."

"What lesson?"

"New Orleans," Grodnik said. "From there you can get any place. Mexico, South America, Far East, Europe. It's a big seaport. And it's one of the ports that dope is smuggled through. That means a mob is operating there."

I said: "Stewart isn't the kind to know mobsters."

"You can't guess what he knows. This riverboat reservation was made three months or more ago. If Stewart made it, and I'm willing to bet he did, then he planned to snatch the dough and get clean away."

"But how do you know Stewart was—"

A fist rapped at my door, then the door opened. Grodnik frowned significantly at the phonofilm holder in my hand. I just had time to slip it into my shirt pocket when the door was opened and Penn Maxwell poked his sandy head around the edge.

"Can I—"

"Come in," I said. "Come in and—"

My voice dwindled to nothing when the door opened wide enough for me to see who was standing behind Maxwell. Out of the corner of my eye I noticed Grodnik's cigar wobble uncertainly as his mouth opened. I pushed against the arm of the chair so that I could get to my feet.

"Meet the missus," Maxwell said with a proud bow, sweeping his arm widely toward the open door.

The long, lovely, blonde girl moved eagerly forward, her expression vibrant with happiness. Something soft and furry and still smelling of the cold winter air touched lightly at my hand as she swept toward me with an excited clatter of heels, her arms spread.

"On, Carney!" she cried. "I wanted to tell you first of all—"

The words broke off in embarrassed silence when she saw Grodnik. "Dad! I didn't know you—"

"I guess you didn't," Grodnik growled. "I just guess you didn't."

Mrs. Penn Maxwell, formerly Jane Grodnik, smothered the old

news behind the news

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles by Ray Tucker from Egypt.

CAIRO—The United States has become extremely unpopular throughout the vast Arab world, which constitutes very weak frontlines against Communist aggression, militarily and economically, but which owns the land on which the Western Allies need army, air and navy bases. We also need their active support from a sentimental and historical viewpoint. We cannot afford to have them favor the Russians in resentment.

The Arab peoples, according to their spokesmen in this ancient capital of Islamic belief, like us, personally and collectively. American business men and news paper correspondents get along far better with the Arabians, from here through the Middle East and India, than do the representatives of any other nation. But the officials and the people despise the U. S. foreign policy as conducted by both the Truman and Roosevelt Administrations. Though utterly anti-Communist, they are skeptical of our attachment to such hated "colonial and imperialistic" powers as Britain and France.

BACKING—On the ground that we cannot afford a break in the solidarity of the Anglo-French-American alliance in Europe and the Far East, Washington backed the British in the Iranian oil dispute and also London's now ended controversy with Egypt over future occupation of the great military and air base, 150 miles northeast of Cairo, which is regarded as essential to the protection of the Suez Canal against Russian invasion of the Middle East. We support also the unpopular French occupation of Tunisia and Morocco.

It is easy to sit in Washington and write about backward peoples' resentment of foreign occupation, colonialism and imperialism. They are only words, theoretical terms. It requires a visit to this section of the world, and talks with people from officials to hotel door dragomans, to realize the bitterness which we are building for ourselves.

To support Anglo-French foreign policies, for instance, we refused to market Iranian oil after that country confiscated British holdings. The great international petroleum organization clamped on a boycott at the request of the State Department under Truman, and Eisenhower continued it.

In backing the British in the Suez Canal and military base argument, the United States refused to sell arms to the new Nasser regime. So, Egypt bought from Spain, which is receiving American military assistance. Finally, we voted against the demand of the Tunisians and Moroccans that their grievances against France be discussed before the United Nations.

SYMBOL—Washington's siding with the Churchill government in the Churchill government in the Suez Canal controversy appears to be small cause for hurting Egyptian and Arabian friendship toward us. But to the Egyptians, who are imbued with the same spirit of nationalism that is sweeping what Truman called "backward and undeveloped countries," it represented the last symbol of "imperialism and colonialism."

Monrovia Garden Club Has Family Night Flower Show

Slides Are Shown By Cecil Reid

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Conley was the scene of an annual family night of Monrovia Garden club when fifteen members, their families and guests gathered for a covered dish supper.

Mrs. Francis Furniss, club president, conducted a short business session which included reports of officers and committees. Mrs. Furniss introduced Mrs. William Snyder, incoming president, who presented her committees and led a brief discussion of future projects and tours.

Mrs. Adrian Liston, Mrs. Edwin Towler and Mrs. Smith were appointed to be in charge of a club arrangement for the Pickaway County Fair in September. "Autumn Bounty" is to be the theme of the project.

The Conley home was decorated for the occasion with summer flowers and arrangements which were brought by the members for a club flower show.

The show classifications and winners included:

Line arrangement of Gladiolus, Mrs. John O'Day.

Petunias in a Crystal Bowl, Mrs. Furniss.

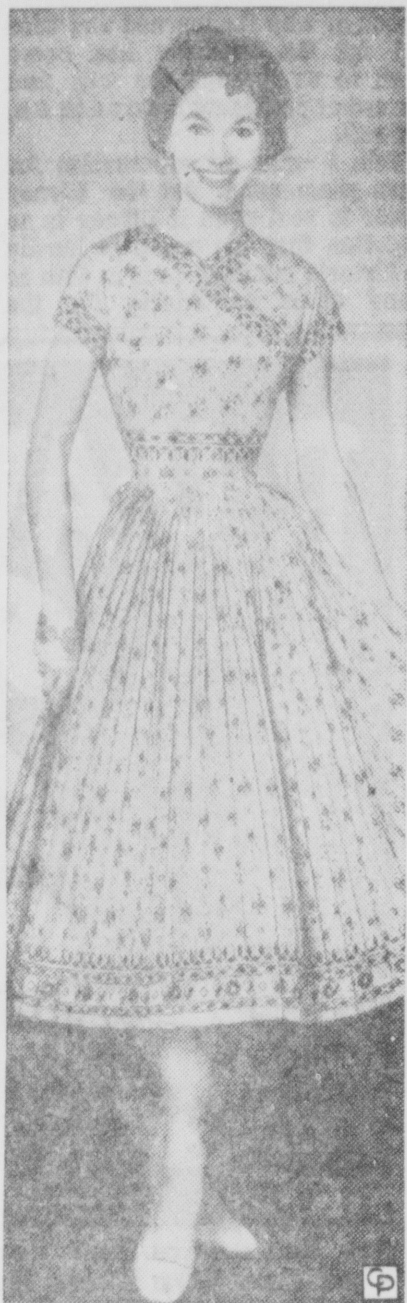

Mass Arrangement of Zinnias, Mrs. O'Day.

Miniatures, Mrs. Furniss.

Anything Goes, Mrs. O'Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Reid and daughter and Col. and Mrs. John J. Seibel were honored guests for the occasion. Mr. Reid presented colored slides of a Huntington Flower Show, a Spring Tulip show held at Columbus and scenes taken during a trip to Florida and an extensive tour of the West.

The next meeting is to be the final meeting of the club year. Installation of new officers is to be the highlight of the session, which will be held in the home of Mrs. Ernest Sheets.

SARI BORDER PRINT—This daytime dress in crease-resistant cotton comes from the collection of Carolyn Schurer. The bodice is designed for a surplice effect, and the skirt closely-pleated all around. Turquoise and dark blue are mixed with black and white in the print.

Youth Fellowship Of Laurelville Holds Session

Miss Emily McDowell and Miss Brenda McDowell entertained fourteen members of the Methodist Junior Youth Fellowship at the Laurelville church.

Mrs. Hugh Poling and Mrs. Tom Rose, leaders, were in charge of the session. Opening prayer was given by Miss Rosemary Hitt and the lesson was led by Mrs. Poling. Games and contests provided entertainment during a recreation period. Refreshments were served by the hostesses at the close of the meeting.

Q. What are the names of these ready-to-serve meats?

A. Back row, left to right—veal loaf, pressed ham roll, "boiled" ham, pepper loaf, head cheese, pimiento loaf. Front row, left to right—liver sausage, bologna, thuringer.

Q. How may they be used?

A. In addition to their use on cold meat trays, these ready-to-serve meats are excellent cubed or sliced into julienne strips for main dish meat salads. For hot servings, they may be used in numerous casseroles.

Studies Show Real Savings of Home Canning!

Home canning is still very popular, with more than 20 million housewives putting up their own fruits and vegetables every year. However, many people are not sure as to how much home canning actually saves them on food costs.

Recent studies offer substantial proof that there is real economy in home canning, as shown in the following figures: The cost of a jar (based on jar life of 8 years), plus a new lid each year, plus the necessary heat for processing, amounts to about 3¢ a quart.

The cost of the contents will vary, of course, depending on whether the produce is home-grown, or bought. When you grow your own tomatoes, for instance, the cost (including plants, fertilizer and insecticides) amounts to about 25¢ a bushel, according to agricultural college research. As will be seen in the yield chart below, a bushel of home-grown tomatoes makes from 12 to 16 quarts of juice. This brings the cost of the contents to 2¢ or less per quart, for a total cost of only 5¢ per quart.

Based on 3¢ a quart for jar, lid and heat—and applying the yield chart below to your cost of raw materials—it will be found that home canning results in substantial savings. In addition, many women prefer home-canned foods because of their individual flavor, seasoned to their families' own tastes.

Nebraska Grange Conducts Inspection, Degree Rites

Mr. and Mrs. John Dowler, Pickaway County Grange Deputies were guests at the inspection of Nebraska Grange held Tuesday evening.

The officers conferred the third degree, with Worthy Master Joseph Peters presiding. Don Collins and Carl Bennett reported on a recent meeting of a Community Health Council. Contributions were made for two appeals for aid.

The program which was presented by the lecturer, Carl Bennett, opened with group singing led by Mrs. David Dill, accompanied by Mrs. Boyd Fosnaugh.

"The Grange, a Community Asset", was the subject of an essay, read by Elaine Quillen. Mrs. Jay Hay entertained with two accordion solos, "The Two Guitars", and "Under the Double Eagle".

A. J. Dunkel was the moderator for a panel discussion on the question, "Do Government crop controls tend toward Socialism?" Ira Hoover, Rennie Sours, Homer Reber and Don Collins assisted with the discussion.

Mr. Dowler complimented the Grange on their splendid work. He also urged members to attend Pomona Grange meeting Sat. at Star Grange, and the degree of Pomona, which will be conferred at Logan Elm Grange Monday evening.

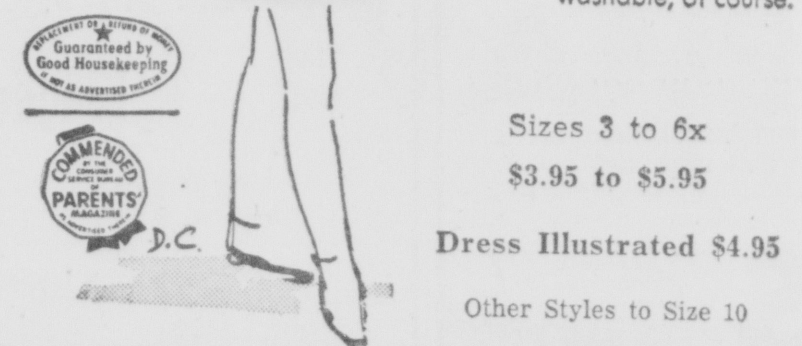

Members were urged to plan to attend the Aug. 17 meeting, when the children will have an important part on the program. Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee at the close of the session.

Vary Junior's diet! Add a half can of baby-food liver and bacon to two scrambled eggs. This will serve two, so Mother can have half of it for her luncheon dish.

Vinegar Reduces Dust Catching Of Synthetics

A few drops of white vinegar added to rinse water when washing nylon curtains or plastic furniture helps reduce their dust catching trait.

Jane Schoppe, Ohio State University home furnishings specialist, says friction causes static electricity in most synthetic fabric. The static charge then attracts dust stirred up in rooms. That's one reason nylon curtains turn gray and plastic furniture seems to be constant dust catchers. The vinegar rinse reduces the static charge on these materials.

Miss Schoppe says most manufacturers of synthetic fibers have tried to solve this problem by using a permanent anti-static finish on the fabric. It has helped, but it hasn't solved the problem completely.

Elks To Hold Summer Dance At Country Club

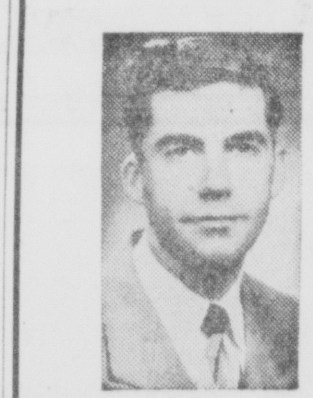

Pickaway Country Club is to be the scene Saturday evening of one of the highlights of the summer social season, when the members of Circleville Elks Lodge host their ladies and guests at a Summer Dance.

Dr. David Goldschmidt is chairman of arrangements for the event. He will be assisted by James Yost, Russell Ward and Dr. William Rieky.

Dancing to the music of the Marion Carle Combo of Columbus will begin at 10 p. m. in the Country Club barn which is to be decorated for the occasion with colored streamers and Summer flowers.

Monrovia Garden Club Has Family Night Flower Show

Slides Are Shown By Cecil Reid

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Conley was the scene of an annual family night of Monrovia Garden Club when fifteen members, their families and guests gathered for a covered dish supper.

Mrs. Francis Furniss, club president, conducted a short business session which included reports of officers and committees. Mrs. Furniss introduced Mrs. William Snyder, incoming president, who presented her committees and led a brief discussion of future projects and tours.

Mrs. Adrian Liston, Mrs. Edwin Towler and Mrs. Smith were appointed to be in charge of a club arrangement for the Pickaway County Fair in September. "Autumn Bounty" is to be the theme of the project.

The Conley home was decorated for the occasion with summer flowers and arrangements which were brought by the members for a club flower show.

The show classifications and winners included:

Line arrangement of Gladiolus, Mrs. John O'Day.

Petunias in a Crystal Bowl, Mrs. Furniss.

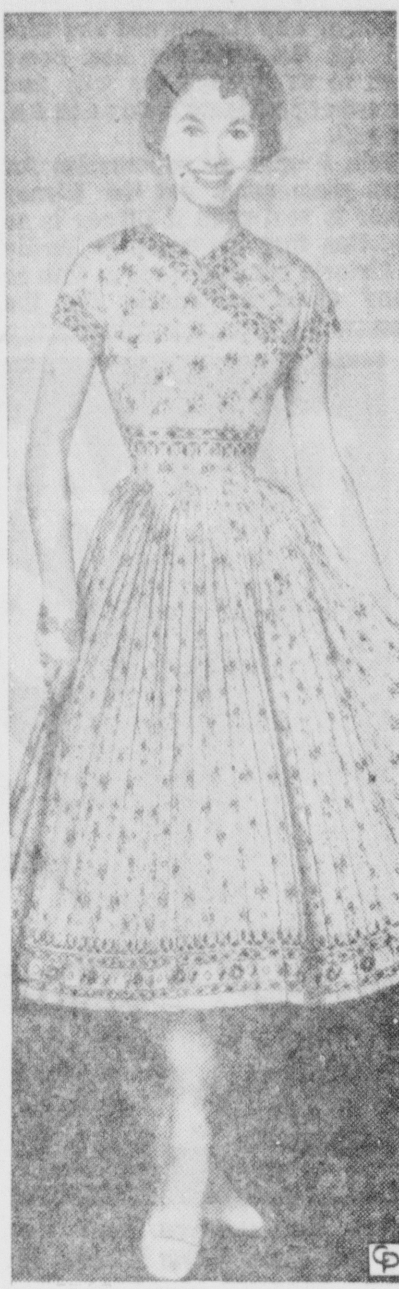

Mass Arrangement of Zinnias, Mrs. O'Day.

Miniatures, Mrs. Furniss.

Anything Goes, Mrs. O'Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Reid and daughter and Col. and Mrs. John J. Seibel were honored guests for the occasion. Mr. Reid presented colored slides of a Huntington Flower Show, a Spring Tulip show held at Columbus and scenes taken during a trip to Florida and an extensive tour of the West.

The next meeting is to be the final meeting of the club year. Installation of new officers is to be held in the home of Mrs. Ernest Sheets.

Studies Show Real Savings of Home Canning!

Home canning is still very popular, with more than 20 million housewives putting up their own fruits and vegetables every year. However, many people are not sure as to how much home canning actually saves them on food costs.

Recent studies offer substantial proof that there is real economy in home canning, as shown in the following figures: The cost of a jar (based on jar life of 8 years), plus a new lid each year, plus the necessary heat for processing, amounts to about 3¢ a quart.

The cost of the contents will vary, of course, depending on whether the produce is home-grown, or bought. When you grow your own tomatoes, for instance, the cost (including plants, fertilizer and insecticides) amounts to about 25¢ a bushel, according to agricultural college research. As will be seen in the yield chart below, a bushel of home-grown tomatoes makes from 12 to 16 quarts of juice. This brings the cost of the contents to 2¢ or less per quart, for a total cost of only 5¢ per quart.

Based on 3¢ a quart for jar, lid and heat—and applying the yield chart below to your cost of raw materials—it will be found that home canning results in substantial savings. In addition, many women prefer home-canned foods because of their individual flavor, seasoned to their families' own tastes.

U.S. Business To Get 'Nudge' From Agency

Commerce Secretary Says Pump-Priming Not Being Considered

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen today can study the difference between a nudge and pump-priming. Some, doubtless, will welcome either if it helps to get business off dead-center, come fall.

Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks says the government plans to give business a nudge this fall by spending money faster.

Old-fashioned pump-priming consisted of the U. S. Treasury pouring more money into industry and trade. This involved public works, buying materials for the stock pile, purchasing more hard and soft goods and services for defense, or making easy loans to various companies so they could expand and produce more.

The nudge that Secretary Weeks describes doesn't involve spending more money than previously appropriated. It involves spending the same amount of money, but spending it this fall instead of waiting to around the start of the year as first planned.

The boost is expected to help business to work out of the summer doldrums and to take an upward path in the fall, rather than continuing to drift or even perhaps to slip back a little.

If the nudge works as hoped, business is supposed to pick up enough momentum to keep on going upward after the first of the year without the aid then of the government spending which is to be borrowed for use this fall. If this leg-up doesn't work, some businessmen expect the government will consider the more old-fashioned method of pump-priming.

For a year now businessmen have been getting the benefit of a number of governmental assists to the economy — although they have acted more as cushions to the decline than as nudges upward.

The Federal Reserve Board more than a year ago turned toward an easy money policy. This was before the decline started—while it was just a prospect, in fact. The construction industry, for one, found this a big help in keeping its boom going.

Tax reductions have helped a lot. They have given individuals a little more money to spend. They have enabled many corporations to offset declining sales and keep their profits after taxes as high or higher than ever.

The tax revision bill will help many firms save on taxes and also plan more profitable enterprises for the future. And it should also cut tax payments for many individuals, and thus give them more money to spend at the stores.

Companies that make aircraft, tanks and other hard goods for the military are expecting more orders this fall. This will work back into the metal and electrical equipment industries in time and spur output there.

The President has proposed a 50 billion dollar nationwide defense highway system, which certainly cheers construction industries and their suppliers. As an immediate step, the government is allotting 875 million dollars to the states for highway work right now. Usually the funds would have gone to the states around the first of the year.

All these nudges will be welcome to business this fall. There are some, however, who are wondering about next year.

If next year's funds are to be spent now, will next year look like a drought? Or will Uncle Sam look for some new money—for another nudge?

Ice cream packed in a carton, then wrapped with several pieces of dry ice in heavy paper, or packed in a corrugated box and tightly sealed may be kept without other refrigeration from two to eight hours, depending on the amount of dry ice used and how complete the wrapping excludes air.

Susan Hayward Finds New Trouble

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A legal maneuver to block Susan Hayward's divorce suit has been instituted by counsel for her husband, actor Jess Barker.

A petition of recrimination was filed yesterday by Barker's attorney, S. S. Hahn, with the judge who has the divorce case under submission. Hahn said he resorted to the little-used petition because Barker did not want to file a cross-complaint for divorce.

"He wants her back," the lawyer explained. "He wants her divorce denied on the grounds that she did things to him just as bad as the things she say he did to her."

Miss Hayward has said Barker tossed her into the swimming pool and paddled her. He said she provoked these acts by "unwifely behavior" that included burning him with a cigarette.

Boatman Accused In Lake Mishap

LANCASTER (AP)—Fairfield County Sheriff Dudley Crider has filed manslaughter charges against Andrew Sullivan, 49, a Columbus machinist, operator of a boat which struck and killed a Ross County man last Thursday.

Henry Minor, 29, of Kingston was killed when the motor boat hit him as he and a companion were wading near Leib's island in Buckeye Lake. The companion, William Blimes, 35, of Millersport escaped injury.

Sullivan told authorities he was pulling a water skier who had fallen into the lake when he heard a thud and screams. He said he did not know he had struck anyone.

Sokolosky's These Days

But this is an interesting historic fact. The Birney poster was for two mass meetings in Madison County, New York State. For years this particular poster hung in a country store in a town called Canesara in Madison County. Probably because nobody could pronounce Canesara, they changed the name to Sullivan which is what the town is now called to the everlasting joy of the Irish. Not many miles away is Pompey, a town in which, I am informed, lived a fine American girl Jenny Jerome, who in due course became the mother of Winston Churchill.

Now, there it is. Winston Churchill got his wonder-working phrase pre-natally by osmosis. If you do not believe that, you will not believe that Bacon wrote Shake-

U.S. Business To Get 'Nudge' From Agency

Commerce Secretary Says Pump-Priming Not Being Considered

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen today can study the difference between a nudge and pump-priming. Some, doubtless, will welcome either if it helps to get business off dead-center, come fall.

Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks says the government plans to give business a nudge this fall by spending money faster.

Old-fashioned pump-priming consisted of the U. S. Treasury pouring more money into industry and trade. This involved public works, buying materials for the stock pile, purchasing more hard and soft goods and services for defense, or making easy loans to various companies so they could expand and produce more.

The nudge that Secretary Weeks describes doesn't involve spending more money than previously appropriated. It involves spending the same amount of money, but spending it this fall instead of waiting to around the start of the year as first planned.

The boost is expected to help business to work out of the summer doldrums and to take an upward path in the fall, rather than continuing to drift or even perhaps to slip back a little.

If the nudge works as hoped, business is supposed to pick up enough momentum to keep on going upward after the first of the year without the aid then of the government spending which is to be borrowed for use this fall. If this leg-up doesn't work, some businessmen expect the government will consider the more old-fashioned method of pump-priming.

For a year now businessmen have been getting the benefit of a number of governmental assists to the economy — although they have acted more as cushions to the decline than as nudges upward.

The Federal Reserve Board more than a year ago turned toward an easy money policy. This was before the decline started—while it was just a prospect, in fact. The construction industry, for one, found this is a big help in keeping its boom going.

Tax reductions have helped a lot. They have given individuals a little more money to spend. They have enabled many corporations to offset declining sales and keep their profits after taxes as high or higher than ever.

The tax revision bill will help many firms save on taxes and also plan more profitable enterprises for the future. And it should also cut tax payments for many individuals, and thus give them more money to spend at the stores.

Companies that make aircraft, tanks and other hard goods for the military are expecting more orders this fall. This will work back into the metal and electrical equipment industries in time and spur output there.

The President has proposed a 50 billion dollar nationwide defense highway system, which certainly cheers construction industries and their suppliers. As an immediate step, the government is allotting 875 million dollars to the states for highway work right now. Usually the funds would have gone to the states around the first of the year.

All these nudges will be welcome to business this fall. There are some, however, who are wondering about next year.

If next year's funds are to be spent now, will next year look like a drought? Or will Uncle Sam look for some new money—for another nudge?

Susan Hayward Finds New Trouble

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A legal maneuver to block Susan Hayward's divorce suit has been instituted by counsel for her husband, actor Jess Barker.

A petition of recrimination was filed yesterday by Barker's attorney, S. S. Hahn, with the judge who has the divorce case under submission. Hahn said he resorted to the little-used petition because Barker did not want to file a cross-complaint for divorce.

"He wants her back," the lawyer explained. "He wants her divorce denied on the grounds that she did things to him just as bad as the things she say he did to her."

Miss Hayward has said Barker tossed her into the swimming pool and paddled her. He said she provoked these acts by "unwifely behavior" that included burning him with a cigarette.

Boatman Accused In Lake Mishap

LANCASTER (AP)—Fairfield County Sheriff Dudley Crider has filed manslaughter charges against Andrew Sullivan, 49, a Columbus machinist, operator of a boat which struck and killed a Ross County man last Thursday.

Henry Minor, 29, of Kingston was killed when the motor boat hit him as he and a companion were wading near Leib's island in Buckeye Lake. The companion, William Blimes, 35, of Millersport escaped injury.

Sullivan told authorities he was pulling a water skier who had fallen into the lake when he heard a thud and screams. He said he did not know he had struck anyone.

But this is an interesting historic fact. The Birney poster was for two mass meetings in Madison County, New York State. For years this particular poster hung in a country store in a town called Canesara in Madison County. Probably because nobody could pronounce Canesara, they changed the name to Sullivan which is what the town is now called to the everlasting joy of the Irish. Not many miles away is Pompey, a town in which, I am informed, lived a fine American girl Jenny Jerome, who in due course became the mother of Winston Churchill.

Now, there it is. Winston Churchill got his wonder-working phrase pre-natally by osmosis. If you do not believe that, you will not believe that Bacon wrote Shakespeare, that Sam Rosenman wrote Franklin D. Roosevelt's speeches, that sometimes Haydn wrote Mozart and vice-versa, that nobody ever rolled his own. You must wonder that Socrates never wrote a book or why the learned and wise and fat Dr. Johnson has come down to us through the gay and somewhat profligate S c o t s m a n, Boswell.

Well, I offer no explanation for these phenomena. But the Birney poster is real even if Birney is so forgotten that his name is hardly an historic memory as it is with so many other candidates for the Presidency. As for Winston Churchill, he still holds forth in fine Georgian English, the master phrase-maker of our time.

mit the dog to run at large, unaccompanied by the master or owner, or person in charge thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor." The measure went on to provide fines ranging from three to $10 for violations, plus the costs of prosecution.

Although some of them had tried earlier to win support for the new ordinance, all of the lawmakers present voted against it with the exception of Cook. He explained he felt the issue had come down to a question of "human rights and dog rights".

Councilman Richard Penn was not present at Tuesday's meeting. Adkins was again the leading spokesman opposed to the new ordinance. "I'm up here to defend the dogs," he announced to lead off the discussion.

HE RECALLED points he had stressed at the July 20 meeting and again denounced the ordinance as "very inhuman." Dogs, he reminded council, are usually pets for children who soon will be returning to school.

"And when they go back to school," he asked, "who is supposed to take care of the dog?" Adkins declared other members of a dog-loving family do not have the time to give the pet its needed "walk" and exercise.

"Maybe there have been some people in Circleville who have had their flower beds damaged by dogs," he said. "And that's unfortunate. . . . You can bet that if my dog did it they would be reimbursed for the damage."

This, however, he maintained, "is no reason to 'penalize' all the dog owners and all the dogs." Adkins declared many dogs have become irritable since they have been "chained up." He added he had received no complaints about the dog he owns and that he, in turn, had never complained about dogs owned by others.

"Human beings do more damage in Circleville than dogs," he told council.

He then recalled the proposal he had made before—that if the new measure was intended to safeguard the public against rabies, council should pass a law making inoculation of all dogs compulsory. He urged council to "use discretion" in voting on the measure then before it.

COUNCILMAN Harold Clifton replied:

"I've talked to quite a few people about this ordinance, and I found many more for it than against it." He noted Adkins' willingness to reimburse any property owner for damage done by his dog, but went on to point out that all dog-owners probably would not be so inclined.

From the beginning of the controversy Clifton has reminded council that the new measure was aimed, not at the law-abiding dog-owners, but at dog owners who show a lack of consideration for other people.

"I don't think this ordinance is quite as cruel as Bob (Adkins) seems to think it is," Clifton said. "I think it's good ordinance."

Adkins declared the proposed ordinance would require all dogs to be kept "fenced in," and he told of going to considerable expense to build fences to keep his dog on the premises. In reply to Clifton, he said he could get a petition signed to show great opposition to the measure.

Crites intervened to point out the only change proposed in existing law was in the rule extending current restrictions to a year-round period.

WALTER HEISE, one of several spectators who joined in the debate, said a state law already on the books provides restrictions for stray dogs. The state statute, he suggested, might give the city lawmakers "a chance to get out from under" if they so wished.

Charles Carter, also speaking from the spectators' section as a director of the Pickaway County Humane Society said he wanted to erase any impression that the proposed ordinance was being backed by the society. He said he did not recall ever hearing the society discuss the proposal, and that he himself considered it "inhuman."

Carter likewise joined in support of a compulsory inoculation of dogs, declaring it could be made obligatory when dog tags are purchased.

"This ordinance only tries to do one thing," Clifton said. "It tries to make the owner responsible for his dog, and I think it should be passed."

Adkins in reply declared the owner is always responsible for his dog anyway, "and Harold (Clifton) should know that." Adkins said dog owners have a regard and responsibility for their dogs—"otherwise what could be the use in having a dog?"

Clifton said the sudden drop in the number of stray dogs on the streets after the current law was passed would seem to indicate that the owners had not been showing such responsibility.

POLICE CHIEF Elmer Merriam then joined the debate to ask both Clifton and Cook if they have dogs.

"Yes, I have one," Clifton quickly replied. "She's named Gertrude!"

Merriam repeated his question to Cook, who replied: "I had a couple of dogs and got rid of them." Cook explained he did so because of complaints from neighbors.

"How did you get rid of them?" Merriam asked.

"I gave them to the dog catcher," Cook replied.

Several others joined in the verbal marathon at this stage, some favoring and some opposing the ordinance.

Ervin Leist and Merriam said they favored the compulsory inoculation idea.

Crites then touched on an incident in which children were forced but I think human rights are superior—and that's the way I'll vote."

Carter at this stage said it would be up to the humane officer to see that dog owners complied with any law calling for the anti-rabies inoculation.

"We're not getting anywhere in this discussion," Crites intervened. "We have up to Oct. 1. I think we should get up another dog ordinance to include the vaccination of dogs. I move we table this ordinance."

But none of the other council members would second the motion. About this time, Cook said: "Let's vote on the amendment."

IT HAD apparently been forgotten by many during the discussion. Cook and Councilman Clarence Helvering then held a brief discussion which led Helvering to say:

"I don't see how any man can sit there and say it's a good ordinance."

It was not clear whether Helvering was referring to the ordinance as a whole or Cook's proposed amendment.

Councilman John Robinson and Cook voted for the amendment, which lost, 4 to 2.

At this point Clifton called everybody's attention to the fact that the ordinance had not yet been read for the third time. The debate had started before Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas had an opportunity to carry out that formality.

Cook then engaged Adkins in a discussion, over the meaning of the phrase "at large," and Adkins said if Clifton's interpretation of the ordinance was correct, "then the dog warden has been arresting dog owners illegally."

ROBINSON rejoined the argument to say he feels "it's enough" if dogs are "kept penned up for six months." However, he added: "I don't think they should be allowed to run loose, though."

Crites then voiced the comment which led to the final vote. However, he again suggested the measure be tabled. But Cook told him: "You may as well vote it down."

Inoculated? Then he added: Cook queries Council President Ben Gordon as to "what happens

if dogs gets in my yard and I shoot one of them?"

Gordon replied this would be illegal, "because you're shooting private property."

Then Cook and Merriam argued briskly over what the situation will be in reference to stray dogs when the children start back to school.

"Call the roll, Fred!", Gordon said to Nicholas. And the roll was called, showing the ordinance was defeated, 5 to 1.

The wrangle ended about 10:15 p. m. and all but a few of the spectators got up and left.

But none of the other council members would second the motion. About this time, Cook said: "Let's vote on the amendment."

IT HAD apparently been forgotten by many during the discussion. Cook and Councilman Clarence Helvering then held a brief discussion which led Helvering to say: "I don't see how any man can sit there and say it's a good ordinance."

It was not clear whether Helvering was referring to the ordinance as a whole or Cook's proposed amendment.

Councilman John Robinson and Cook voted for the amendment, which lost, 4 to 2.

At this point Clifton called everybody's attention to the fact that the ordinance had not yet been read for the third time. The debate had started before Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas had an opportunity to carry out that formality.

Cook then engaged Adkins in a discussion over the meaning of the phrase "at large," and Adkins said if Clifton's interpretation of the ordinance was correct, "then the dog warden has been arresting dog owners illegally."

ROBINSON rejoined the argument to say he feels "it's enough" if dogs are "kept penned up for six months." However, he added: "I don't think they should be allowed to run loose, though."

Crites then voiced the comment which led to the final vote. However, he again suggested the measure be tabled. But Cook told him: "You may as well vote it down."

Cook queries Council President Ben Gordon as to "what happens

if dogs gets in my yard and I shoot one of them?"

Gordon replied this would be illegal, "because you're shooting private property."

Then Cook and Merriman argued briskly over what the situation will be in reference to stray dogs when the children start back to school.

"Call the roll, Fred!," Gordon said to Nicholas. And the roll was called, showing the ordinance was defeated, 5 to 1.

The wrangle ended about 10:15 p. m. and all but a few of the spectators got up and left.

In Memoriam

In memory of our daughter, Monica Leah Holbrook who passed away Aug. 4, 1954. Age 6 yrs., 4 mo. and 20 days. No, not cold beneath the grasses. Not close within the tomb. Rather in my Father's mansion, Living in another room. Shall I blame my Father's wisdom? Shall I sit unwept in a gym? When I know she is very happy. Waiting in another room?

New Curb And Gutter Project Brews Storm Ahead For City's Lawmakers

Council Aiming To Handle Job By Assessment

Property Owners To Battle Method; Action Delayed

City Council spent most of its three-hour meeting Tuesday night haggling over stray dogs and late-night eating places but the lawmakers—before and after the explosive subjects—handled the usual assortment of secondary business.

At least one matter which drew relatively little discussion Tuesday night seemed certain to touch off a great deal of talk at council's next session. It was one of the first items of business placed before the lawmakers.

Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas reported he had called the attention of affected property owners to a resolution in which council has declared it necessary to improve Sunshine St. and part of Atwater Ave. by installing curbs and gutters. The proposed job, council has agreed, should be done by the assessment method.

Under this plan—if the action wins final approval—each of the affected property owners would be charged according to one of several assessment procedures, usually on a basis of "benefits" received. However, it was made clear the proposal faces stormy weather when council meets again Aug. 17.

AFTER NICHOLAS listed the notifications he had served on property owners, to confirm the city's intent, the lawmakers heard a petition from approximately 30 property owners who oppose the project as outlined by council. "An attorney" who had been retained to represent the group, however, was not able to attend the meeting and council agreed to hold up further action on the proposal.

In listing reasons for their opposition, the property owners said the work could be done cheaper if the curbs and gutters were put in individually. Among other reasons also cited was the claim that the contemplated procedure was not used when curbs and gutters were placed elsewhere in the city.

Councilman Ray Cook said it was his impression those in opposition were not concentrating their objections on the curbs and gutters, but upon the method the city proposed to use in placing them. He explained their legal representative was not present and suggested the matter be held over until the next meeting. This was agreed.

Council then heard the reading of a letter in which Ronald and Phillip Heise objected to certain requirements set down by the Planning and Zoning Commission for property they own in the Zwicker subdivision. Discussions were held at the end of the meeting in an effort to eliminate the objections.

Council at this stage went into its first big wrangle of the evening—over an ordinance that would require all eating places "and filling stations" to close during the early-morning hours if they are located in a residential district.

At the end of this debate, the lawmakers quickly approved two measures which appropriated additional funds for Circleville's Municipal Court. One ordinance makes $1,200 available for equipment and supplies, and the other appropriates $500 for incidentals.

COUNCILMAN George Crites urged passage of both measures, up for final reading. He said he had been unable to find the bills which would itemize the court's needs, but he emphasized he knew the needs were "legitimate". Crites chairman of council's finance committee, called attention to the large amount of business being handled by the court and the consequent need of meeting its running costs.

Then the lawmakers cleared the decks for the main debate of the session—over an ordinance that would keep the city's summertime restrictions on stray dogs in effect throughout the year.

When the measure was finally defeated, council approved a routine fund transfer for the city water branch and also voted expense money for Parking Meter Man Nolan Dunkle, who will attend a five-day training course in meter maintenance later this month. Dunkle, who will go to Canton for the schooling, was voted $100.

Bleeding Boy Suffers Stroke

MIDDLETOWN (P)—Eddie Phillips, whose protracted bleeding following a tonsil operation aroused the concern of many persons, suffered a stroke over the weekend.

His condition today was regarded as improved and he was being fed a milk formula through a tube. He also is breathing through a tube.

Eddie, 6, underwent an operation July 6. He bled for days. Then he was beset with hives and over the weekend a blood clot formed.

The stroke followed and the little boy's left side was paralyzed for nearly eight hours.

The irony of it all, the physicians said, was that they tried for three weeks to get the blood to clot, then when it did it caused a crisis.

New Idle Pay Claims Increase

COLUMBUS (P)—The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reports there were 13,374 new claimants for unemployment compensation for the week ended July 31 compared to 12,877 the previous week.

Claimants unemployed one week or more were listed at 93,511 for the week ended July 31 compared to 96,572 the previous week. The total does not include those workers who still may be unemployed after exhausting their maximum unemployment compensation pay.

Judge Bill Shelved

WASHINGTON (P)—The House Judiciary Committee has tabled a proposed constitutional amendment resolution fixing the Supreme Court membership permanently at nine justices and requiring all federal judges to retire at 75.

Tanker Bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate has sent to President Eisenhower a bill authorizing a $150 million tanker construction program. The compromise measure calls for private construction of 15 tankers and government construction of five.

have a little fun on $100," commented Crites.

All members of council indicated they approved of the plan to have Dunkle take the special training. It was pointed out he should be able to save the city money through the future by his maintenance work, and that he may also be able to learn the answers for some of the questions now lingering over the city's parking meter setup.

Councilman John Robinson brought up one of them during the discussion, asking if the meters could be adjusted to take pennies as well as nickels. City Safety Director Oscar Root said the meter manufacturers have given the city conflicting information on this point.

COOK COMMENTED he is not sure council ever officially authorized the parking meter system as it is now operated in downtown Circleville.

Just prior to a recess session which tapered off into adjournment, City Service Director Dewey Speakman was authorized to employ the firm of Burgess and Niple to make estimates and surveys for a proposed sewer line in the Rosewood Ave. district, "up to York St."

State Expert Eye Idle Pay Hike Demand

CIO Figures Estimated As Increasing Cost To Ohio By $47½ Million

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—A research expert says jobless benefit boosts sought by the Ohio CIO approximate 47½ million dollars a year.

James Maloon, research chief for the state tax department, came up with the estimate on the basis of current employment conditions.

John Rooney, assistant Ohio CIO secretary-treasurer, said some 20,000 petition are in circulation to place before the next Legislature an initiated bill calling for the increases.

The petitions require qualified signatures equal to 3 per cent of the 1952 Ohio vote for governor. That means nearly 109,000 names.

The CIO proposes an increase in maximum unemployment compensation payments from $30 a week for 26 weeks to $50 for 39 weeks. Minimum benefits would increase from $10 a week to $15.

Allowances for dependent children would go from $2.50 a child, with a limit of $5 a week, to $3 with a $9 weekly top for a like period.

Members of the Legislature usually introduce bills—but they must consider proposals initiated by petition. If they fail to act on initiated bills within four months, or change them to the dissatisfaction of sponsors, the proposal could go on election ballot for consideration of voters.

Rooney said the CIO would have to obtain another 109,000 signatures from persons who did not sign the first petitions to win a place on ballots.

Maloon said his computations "assumed" an average unemployment rate of about 4 per cent of the Ohio labor force under the jobless benefit umbrella. The average for the first six months of this year was slightly less than 4 per cent, he said.

Although Maloon guessed that unemployment might drop during the rest of the year, he cautioned that variations were not predictable.

Using 4 per cent as a peg, Maloon said expenditures under the CIO

Singing Student Irks Opera Boss

BOSTON (P)—Mona Lisa Taft, 18, a student of voice, has learned that making day and night telephone calls to an impresario is no way to impress him.

Superior Court Judge Edward J. Voke placed the girl on probation yesterday after she promised not to call Boris Goldovsky any more.

The girl said she was seeking a singing part from Goldovsky, head of the New England Opera Theatre.

Victor Mature Gets Suspension

HOLLYWOOD (P)—Victor Mature's studio has suspended him and replaced him in the cast of a picture for failure to appear for wardrobe tests.

The suspension was ordered yesterday by 20th Century-Fox and was followed immediately by the assignment of Richard Egan to Mature's role in "Untamed," with Tyrone Power and Susan Hayward. Mature was reported golfing at Del Mar.

proposal would be 145-150 per cent of those under the present law.

"It is expected that the estimate in this form would be reliable over a considerable range of levels of unemployment," Tax Commissioner Stanley J. Bowers observed.

The CIO took to the petition route after failing to win its full requests from the 1953 Legislature. The last session increased maximum benefit from $28 a week to $30 for 26 weeks. It also eased payments into the unemployment trust fund by companies with good employment records and allowed them credit for interest earned by the fund. The resulting tax reduction was estimated at some 30 millions annually.

Concerns with three or more employees contribute to the fund at the rate of $27 for each $1,000 of the annual pay roll unless they earn a lower merit rating.

A recent U. S. Treasury report said Ohio's trust account stood at nearly 650 million dollars last June 30.

State officials said that represented about 9 per cent of the total labor pay roll throughout Ohio.

Should the trust fund drop below 7½ per cent of the total pay roll, they added, employer contribution rates would increase under Ohio law.

Video Writers Call Off Strike

HOLLYWOOD (P)—A strike against three networks by the Television Writers of America, an independent union, has been called off.

Ben Starr, union president, said yesterday the strike lacked the support of other writers.

The union called the walkout July 21 against the Columbia Broadcasting System, National Broadcasting Co. and the American Broadcasting Co. Union demands included "equitable minimums, re-use fees and the union shop."

For a half-hour commercial script the union had asked $715, whereas the best offer from the studios had been $450 and, when negotiations were suspended, this offer had been reduced to $425. There are no fixed scales at present.

50-Cent Wager Costs Man Life

TOLEDO, Ohio (P)—Delmar R. Willingham, 38-year-old painter, won 50 cents yesterday but lost his life. He leaped from the Anthony Wayne bridge into the Maumee River on a bet and drowned.

Willingham lost a game of pool and then two games of shuffleboard to a drinking companion, Niles Niemi, whom he had met several hours earlier at a tavern here, police said.

"There must be something I can beat you at," Willingham told his companion. "I'll bet you I can jump off the bridge."

The two rode to the bridge and Willingham then dove off, yelling: "It's a long way to Tipperary," police said.

Buzz Business Bothers Bathers

HACKENSACK, N.J. (P)—Honey bees, who have found a happy hunting ground among the bareskins at the Arcola Pool, better carry on their buzz business somewhere else in the future.

The pool obtained a temporary injunction against the nearby tully Ho Inn, where five bee hives are kept, ordering the Inn owners to show cause why they should not confine the bees to their own back yard.

Pool operators claimed the bees have stung 40 bathers.

New Curb And Gutter Project Brews Storm Ahead For City's Lawmakers

Council Aiming To Handle Job By Assessment

Property Owners To Battle Method; Action Delayed

City Council spent most of its three-hour meeting Tuesday night haggling over stray dogs and late-night eating places but the lawmakers—before and after the explosive subjects—handled the usual assortment of secondary business.

At least one matter which drew relatively little discussion Tuesday night seemed certain to touch off a great deal of talk at council's next session. It was one of the first items of business placed before the lawmakers.

Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas reported he had called the attention of affected property owners to a resolution in which council has declared it necessary to improve Sunshine St. and part of Atwater Ave. by installing curbs and gutters. The proposed job, council has agreed, should be done by the assessment method.

Under this plan—if the action wins final approval—each of the affected property owners would be charged according to one of several assessment procedures, usually on a basis of "benefits" received. However, it was made clear the proposal faces stormy weather when council meets again Aug. 17.

AFTER NICHOLAS listed the notifications he had served on property owners, to confirm the city's intent, the lawmakers heard a petition from approximately 30 property owners who oppose the project as outlined by council. "An attorney" who had been retained to represent the group, however, was not able to attend the meeting and council agreed to hold up further action on the proposal.

In listing reasons for their opposition, the property owners said the work could be done cheaper if the curbs and gutters were put in individually. Among other reasons also cited was the claim that the contemplated procedure was not used when curbs and gutters were placed elsewhere in the city.

Councilman Ray Cook said it was his impression those in opposition were not concentrating their objections on the curbs and gutters, but upon the method the city proposed to use in placing them. He explained their legal representative was not present and suggested the matter be held over until the next meeting. This was agreed.

Council then heard the reading of a letter in which Ronald and Phillip Heise objected to certain requirements set down by the Planning and Zoning Commission for property they own in the Zwicker subdivision. Discussions were held at the end of the meeting in an effort to eliminate the objections.

Council at this stage went into its first big wrangle of the evening—over an ordinance that would require all eating places "and filling stations" to close during the early-morning hours if they are located in a residential district.

At the end of this debate, the lawmakers quickly approved two measures which appropriated additional funds for Circleville's Municipal Court. One ordinance makes $1,200 available for equipment and supplies, and the other appropriates $500 for incidentals.

COUNCILMAN George Crites urged passage of both measures, up for final reading. He said he had been unable to find the bills which would itemize the court's needs, but he emphasized he knew the needs were "legitimate". Crites chairman of council's finance committee, called attention to the large amount of business being handled by the court and the consequent need of meeting its running costs.

Then the lawmakers cleared the decks for the main debate of the session—over an ordinance that would keep the city's summertime restrictions on stray dogs in effect throughout the year.

When the measure was finally defeated, council approved a routine fund transfer for the city water branch and also voted expense money for Parking Meter Man Nolan Dunkle, who will attend a five-day training course in meter maintenance later this month. Dunkle, who will go to Canton for the schooling, was voted $100.

Bleeding Boy Suffers Stroke

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Eddie Phillips, whose protracted bleeding following a tonsil operation aroused the concern of many persons, suffered a stroke over the weekend.

His condition today was regarded as improved and he was being fed a milk formula through a tube. He also is breathing through a tube.

Eddie, 6, underwent an operation July 6. He bled for days. Then he was beset with hives and over the weekend a blood clot formed. The stroke followed and the little boy's left side was paralyzed for nearly eight hours.

The irony of it all, the physicians said, was that they tried for three weeks to get the blood to clot, then when it did it caused a crisis.

New Idle Pay Claims Increase

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reports there were 13,374 new claimants for unemployment compensation for the week ended July 31 compared to 12,877 the previous week.

Claimants unemployed one week or more were listed at 93,511 for the week ended July 31 compared to 96,572 the previous week. The total does not include those workers who still may be unemployed after exhausting their maximum unemployment compensation pay.

Judge Bill Shelved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Judiciary Committee has tabled a proposed constitutional amendment resolution fixing the Supreme Court membership permanently at nine justices and requiring all federal judges to retire at 75.

Tanker Bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has sent to President Eisenhower a bill authorizing a $150 million tanker construction program. The compromise measure calls for private construction of 15 tankers and government construction of five.

have a little fun on $100," commented Crites.

All members of council indicated they approved of the plan to have Dunkle take the special training. It was pointed out he should be able to save the city money through the future by his maintenance work, and that he may also be able to learn the answers for some of the questions now lingering over the city's parking meter setup.

Councilman John Robinson brought up one of them during the discussion, asking if the meters could be adjusted to take pennies as well as nickels. City Safety Director Oscar Root said the meter manufacturers have given the city conflicting information on this point.

COOK COMMENTED he is not sure council ever officially authorized the parking meter system as it is now operated in downtown Circleville.

Just prior to a recess session which tapered off into adjournment, City Service Director Dewey Speakman was authorized to employ the firm of Burgess and Niple to make estimates and surveys for a proposed sewer line in the Rosewood Ave. district, "up to York St."

State Expert Eye Idle Pay Hike Demand

CIO Figures Estimated As Increasing Cost To Ohio By $47½ Million

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A research expert says jobless benefit boosts sought by the Ohio CIO approximate 47½ million dollars a year.

James Maloon, research chief for the state tax department, came up with the estimate on the basis of current employment conditions.

John Rooney, assistant Ohio CIO secretary-treasurer, said some 20,000 petition are in circulation to place before the next Legislature an initiated bill calling for the increases.

The petitions require qualified signatures equal to 3 per cent of the 1952 Ohio vote for governor. That means nearly 109,000 names.

The CIO proposes an increase in maximum unemployment compensation payments from $30 a week for 26 weeks to $50 for 39 weeks. Minimum benefits would increase from $10 a week to $15.

Allowances for dependent children would go from $2.50 a child, with a limit of $5 a week, to $3 with a $9 weekly top for a like period.

Members of the Legislature usually introduce bills—but they must consider proposals initiated by petition. If they fail to act on initiated bills within four months, or change them to the dissatisfaction of sponsors, the proposal could go on election ballot for consideration of voters.

Rooney said the CIO would have to obtain another 109,000 signatures from persons who did not sign the first petitions to win a place on ballots.

Maloon said his computations "assumed" an average unemployment rate of about 4 per cent of the Ohio labor force under the jobless benefit umbrella. The average for the first six months of this year was slightly less than 4 per cent, he said.

Although Maloon guessed that unemployment might drop during the rest of the year, he cautioned that variations were not predictable.

Using 4 per cent as a peg, Maloon said expenditures under the CIO

Singing Student Irks Opera Boss

BOSTON (AP)—Mona Lisa Taft, 18, a student of voice, has learned that making day and night telephone calls to an impresario is no way to impress him.

Superior Court Judge Edward J. Voke placed the girl on probation yesterday after she promised not to call Boris Goldovsky any more. The girl said she was seeking a singing part from Goldovsky, head of the New England Opera Theatre.

Victor Mature Gets Suspension

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Victor Mature's studio has suspended him and replaced him in the cast of a picture for failure to appear for wardrobe tests.

The suspension was ordered yesterday by 20th Century-Fox and was followed immediately by the assignment of Richard Egan to Mature's role in "Untamed," with Tyrone Power and Susan Hayward. Mature was reported golfing at Del Mar.

proposal would be 145-150 per cent of those under the present law.

"It is expected that the estimate in this form would be reliable over a considerable range of levels of unemployment," Tax Commissioner Stanley J. Bowers observed.

The CIO took to the petition route after failing to win its full requests from the 1953 Legislature. The last session increased maximum benefit from $28 a week to $30 for 26 weeks. It also eased payments into the unemployment trust fund by companies with good employment records and allowed them credit for interest earned by the fund. The resulting tax reduction was estimated at some 30 millions annually.

Concerns with three or more employees contribute to the fund at the rate of $27 for each $1,000 of the annual payroll unless they earn a liver merit rating.

A recent U. S. Treasury report said Ohio's trust account stood at nearly 650 million dollars last June 30.

State officials said that represented about 9 per cent of the total labor pay roll throughout Ohio.

Should the trust fund drop below 7½ per cent of the total pay roll, they added, employer contribution rates would increase under Ohio law.

Video Writers Call Off Strike

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A strike against three networks by the Television Writers of America, an independent union, has been called off.

Ben Starr, union president, said yesterday the strike lacked the support of other writers.

The union called the walkout July 21 against the Columbia Broadcasting System, National Broadcasting Co. and the American Broadcasting Co. Union demands included "equitable minimums, reuse fees and the union shop."

For a half-hour commercial script the union had asked $715, whereas the best offer from the studios had been $450 and, when negotiations were suspended, this offer had been reduced to $425. There are no fixed scales at present.

50-Cent Wager Costs Man Life

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Delmar R. Willingham, 38-year-old painter, won 50 cents yesterday but lost his life. He leaped from the Anthony Wayne bridge into the Maumee River on a bet and drowned. Willingham lost a game of pool and then two games of shuffleboard to a drinking companion, Niles Niemi, whom he had met several hours earlier at a tavern here, police said.

"There must be something I can beat you at," Willingham told his companion. "I'll bet you I can jump off the bridge."

The two rode to the bridge and Willingham then dove off, yelling: "It's a long way to Tipperary," police said.

Buzz Business Bothers Bathers

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP)—Honey bees, who have found a happy hunting ground among the bare-skinned at the Arcola Pool, better carry on their buzz business somewhere else in the future.

The pool obtained a temporary injunction against the nearby hives Ho Inn, where five bee hives are kept, ordering the Inn owners to show cause why they should not confine the bees to their own back yard.

Pool operators claimed the bees have stung 40 bathers.
